

Millions to Bid Ike Farewell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions mourned the passing of Dwight D. Eisenhower today at the beginning of a majestic final tribute before a train carries him slowly home to the Kansas plains.

Private services for the family were planned in a cloistered chapel of the Washington National Cathedral as a personal prelude to the ceremonial farewell that will last five days.

Eisenhower, who led history's mightiest Army to victory in Europe in World War II and his national through eight years of shaky but unbroken peace, died Friday after an epic 11-month siege of repeated heart attacks.

As tributes to the 78-year-old former president poured in from the palaces and parliaments of the world, it was the mayor of Gettysburg, Pa., who perhaps said it for all:

"Although I was expecting it, it still caused great sadness," said William G. Weaver.

President Nixon, whom Eisenhower lived to see in the White House, went into the seclusion of his Camp David, Md., retreat after saying, "We have lost a great leader, a great friend and a great man."

Will Return Sunday

Nixon will return Sunday when the body is borne by horse-drawn caisson through the streets of Washington to lie in state beneath the dome of the U.S. Capitol.

President Charles de Gaulle of France will head the procession of perhaps 100 foreign leaders expected to pay final respect to Eisenhower at a solemn state funeral in the Washington National Cathedral Monday.

"For me, I see disappear with much sadness a dear companion in arms and a friend," said De Gaulle, also 78.

"A giant of our age is gone," said Lyndon B. Johnson, now one of two surviving ex-presidents.

The other, Harry S. Truman, now 84 and in frail health, said despite his political feuds with Eisenhower after World War II, "We were comrades in arms and I cannot forget his services to his country and Western civilization."

Through all the praise for Eisenhower ran the common refrain—victor in war, man of peace.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield compared him to George Washington. And perhaps Eisenhower, with his landslide victories, may well have been the most popular President since the birth of the nation.

Public opinion polls still rank him as the most admired American.

Unknown to the nation when World War II began, Eisenhower rose to command the mightiest armies ever assembled in battle through the invasion of Europe to his personal acceptance of the German surrender.

Reassuring Confidence

Elected President in 1952 and again in 1956—the only Republican in this century to win successive terms—Eisenhower, with his warm smile and simple words, brought reassuring confidence to a nation beset with Cold War crises and won as just plain "Ike" a place in the hearts of millions.

Stricken by his first heart attack while still in his first term in 1955, Eisenhower survived that and eventually six more before congestive heart failure eroded his iron strength and he slid gently into death at 12:25 p.m. Friday.

His wife of more than half a century, Mamie Doud Eisenhower, was nearby when death came as were most other members of his family.

Nixon, who rushed to Walter

Reed Army Hospital after the announcement, proclaimed a national day of mourning Monday and ordered the American flag flown at half-staff around the world for 30 days.

After lying in state in the Cathedral for a day, with the public allowed to pay tribute for eight hours, Eisenhower will pass by the White House for probably the last time Sunday.

His body will be carried to a horse-drawn caisson near the Ellipse to begin the solemn and measured procession up Constitution Avenue to the Capitol. The riderless horse with cavalry boots reversed in the stirrups—symbol of fallen military leaders since the days of Genghis Khan—will follow the casket.

Will Pass in Silence

Shortly after dusk, the long line of mourning Americans will start through the Rotunda for their farewell. Through the night and most of the next day, they will pass in silence past the closed casket.

It will be near sunset Monday, after the sad pageantry of the state funeral, when the body is borne by train out of aging Union Station near the Capitol to begin the long journey—so much like that of Lincoln a century ago.

Burial will be in the chapel of the Eisenhower Center in Abilene, Kan., built on what was a cornfield in his childhood, with in sight of the home he knew long ago.

In Abilene today, black crepe hung above the door of the creamery where the future President worked as a boy. Far away in Gettysburg, battlefield for another war, Mayor Weaver had the flag in the town square lowered to half-staff.

Government will halt Monday to mourn him. Post offices will close. Banks will be shuttered. The stock exchanges will be silent.

In one of the ironies of the age, Eisenhower reached his greatness in a career in two professions he openly disliked—war and politics.

"This damnable thing of war," Eisenhower once called it. And, even in the White House, he admitted he didn't like politics or politicians.

Eisenhower had served as a career Army officer for more than a quarter of a century without spectacular success when World War II erupted. He led the troops that chased the Germans out of North Africa, then swept into Italy. By late 1943, he had become supreme commander of the allied forces in Europe.

On an overcast day in June, 1944, his soldiers stormed the shores of France and knifed through Normandy in the D-Day invasion that signaled the end of the war in Europe less than a year later.

Eisenhower was there in the red schoolhouse at Rheims to accept Germany's surrender.

Chief of Staff

Truman made him the Army's chief of staff from 1945 to 1948 when he retired and became president of Columbia University. But Truman called him back later as commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

In 1952, wresting the Republican nomination from Robert Taft, Eisenhower swept to victory in the presidential election by 6.6 million votes.

He won over Stevenson again in 1956 by 9.5 million—a record landslide until Johnson's victory four years ago.

Eisenhower's era as president was pocked with crisis, but the public never lost its confidence in the grandfatherly golfer and leader it loved.

Eisenhower brought an end to the Korean war, after pledging dramatically in the campaign "I will go to Korea."

He saw the nation grow from 48 to 50 states. The man he named as chief justice—Earl Warren—guided the Supreme Court to its historic decision on school desegregation. And Eisenhower sent troops into Little Rock to back it up.

But at the same time the Soviet Union crushed a revolt in Hungary. Cuba came under Communist leadership of Fidel Castro. Russia won the race to reach space with Sputnik I. Eisenhower was caught in an embarrassing lie after the U-2 spy plane was downed in Russia, exploding plans for a summit meeting in his last months in office.

Area Mourns Death of Eisenhower

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

City, county, state and federal offices will be closed on Monday the day of funeral services for Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan told The Freeman today that city offices will close at 3 p. m., Monday and that the landfill project at Kingston Point will close at 2:30 p. m. The mayor has ordered all city flags flown at half staff.

Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature, also ordered all flags on county buildings flown at half staff. Savago, speaking for residents of the county, expressed grief and sorrow at the "passing of our great countryman," a former general of the armies and President of the United States.

Savago, in a brief statement, said, "Eisenhower demonstrated unequalled qualities of leadership in war as well as peace, not only in his own country but also in the world at large and to all mankind. His place in history is assured and his record of achievement will always demonstrate his greatness in the fight for freedom of all people." County offices, where legal, will close at noon, Monday.

It has also been announced that the First Battalion of the 156th Field Artillery, National Guard, will join in a 21-gun salute on the steps of the capitol in Albany at noon on Monday. A 50-gun salute will follow at 5 p. m., according to Warrant Officer Edio Ferrari of the First Battalion.

The State Education Department has advised local schools to remain open on Monday. A spokesman for the department said today, "While the final decision in this matter is one for local officials to determine, the State Education Department recommends that schools remain open and that some appropriate observance be planned in each school to make the students more aware of the contributions of former President Eisenhower. Regardless of whether schools are open or closed, it is proper to fly the American flag at half staff."

The local Social Security and Internal Revenue offices will be closed along with all facilities of the area's major industry, IBM.

Oscar V. Newkirk, Kingston postmaster, who was appointed by the late president, said today that there would be no city or rural mail delivery on Monday. Postal boxes will be available to holders, Rondout station until 9 a. m., Uptown station until 10 a. m. and the Main Post Office on Smith Avenue, all day. Special Delivery letters will be delivered and receipt and dispatch of mail will be maintained, according to Newkirk.

The New York and American Stock Exchanges will be closed on Monday in memory of the late president. The White House in Washington that Mr. Eisenhower occupied for eight years (1953-1961) will be closed to the public until Wednesday.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller led the state of New York in mourning the late president, a man whom he termed, "a great leader who was loved and trusted by all."

Rockefeller ordered a 30-day mourning period and state flags flown at half staff during that period. State offices will be closed on Monday, reportedly at noon.

Final Tribute: Riderless Horse, Boots Reversed

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the fourth time in five years a riderless horse in black trappings, cavalry boots reversed in the stirrups, will tread the streets of the nation's capital.

The horse and boots, symbol of fallen military leaders since the time of Genghis Khan, will follow the caisson bearing Dwight D. Eisenhower's body just as it followed the caskets of John Kennedy in 1963, and Herbert Hoover and Douglas MacArthur in 1964.

The formal procession so similar to the one that national television burned into the memories of millions of Americans when Kennedy was assassinated, will come Sunday, the day before the actual funeral at Washington National Cathedral.

The clatter of hooves and the mournful roll of drums as Eisenhower's body is borne to the Capitol will give way Monday to the clack of railroad wheels. At dusk that day a train will move out of Union Station bearing his body on a Lincoln-style journey through America's heartland to his boyhood home on the Kansas plains.

Final resting place for the war-time leader and two-term president will be in a small chapel at the Eisenhower Center in Abilene—furthest point west that any president has yet been buried.

The plans for ceremonies in Washington were laid out with military precision by the Army and approved by Eisenhower himself in 1966.

The timetable begins with D-Day—the day of his death which was Friday. The D-Day label, a common military symbol, was also used to designate June 6, 1944, the day Eisenhower-led Allied forces invaded Normandy.

Three hours after he died, his body was taken from Walter Reed Army Hospital to a private funeral home escorted only by two military police cars bearing enlisted representatives of the Army, Navy and Air Force. It was taken from the private funeral home today without ceremony to Washington National Cathedral.

Eisenhower was a Presbyterian and although the Cathedral is Episcopal it contains the tomb of another Presbyterian president—Woodrow Wilson—and is a capital landmark. The plans called for brief military and religious ceremonies for relatives and friends in the Cathedral's Bethlehem Chapel where the casket will remain with a military honor guard until Sunday morning.

A motorcade will carry Eisenhower's body from the cathedral at 3 p. m. to a spot about midway between the White House and the Washington Monument.

After transfer of the flag-draped casket to a horse-drawn caisson, at about 3:30 p. m., the funeral procession will move up Constitution Avenue to the Capitol.

Muffled drums will provide the cadence for companies from each of the armed services, the military academies, the National Guard, the reserves and for the national commanders of 32 veterans organizations.

The caisson and the riderless horse will come in the middle of the somber procession, trailed by the family, President Nixon, foreign heads of state, the vice president, speaker of the House, Supreme Court justices, the President's Cabinet, the dean of the diplomatic corps and state and territorial governors.

Aerial Salute

By the time the mourners reach the base of Capitol Hill a cluster of Air Force planes will shriek across the sky in an aerial salute. Traditionally, one plane in the otherwise symmetrical formation is missing.

The procession will move to the East Front of the Capitol, scene of two inauguration ceremonies for Eisenhower.

While the Joint Chiefs of Staff lead soldiers carrying the coffin up the long series of marble steps, howitzers will thunder a 21-gun salute.

Delegations from Congress and the diplomatic corps ringing the massive, domed rotunda will watch the coffin placed on a catafalque in the center.

The casket will remain in place for at least 21 hours for the public to file by. It will be closed—a decision made by the family.

The body will be removed at 4 p. m. Monday and returned to the cathedral—this time to its vaulted, Gothic sanctuary—for a funeral service set for 4:30 p. m. The service is expected to last about half an hour with 2,107 admitted by ticket.

At the conclusion of the service the final funeral cortege will drive to Union Station, two blocks from the Capitol.

As the hearse bearing the casket approaches the station, cannons will fire their last 21-gun salute for the five-star general in the capital. The Army band will play four ruffles and flourishes, "Hail to the Chief" and a hymn as the casket is carried into the terminal.

There it will be loaded on a 14-car train draped with crepe for the journey to Abilene.

Reaction Locally: Memories and Loss

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

They had expected his death but few Ulster County residents were prepared for the deep sense of loss when former President Dwight D. Eisenhower succumbed peacefully Friday.

Perhaps the simplest description of what Ike meant to the nation was expressed by Peggy Mitchell of Kingston who said, "He was people."

Even college girls who were children when Eisenhower was president, said they felt they really knew the man through his great "personality."

Carol Turck of Hurley and

Sue Theiss said they also came to know him well through their studies in school over the years.

Charles Gaunt of Cedar Street called Ike "a great fella" and said he felt that everyone in the country is sorry to hear about his passing.

John Beisel of Connelly feels the same way. "It is a shame we lost him, he was a wonderful man."

Mrs. Marguerite Derringer of Stone Ridge said that although many consider Eisenhower's death a blessing in view of his lingering illness, "I'm sorry it happened, it's a great loss to the country."

Louis Padilla of Accord, a native of Spain, was extremely touched by the general's death saying that although he is from "the old country" he had known of Eisenhower all his life and is very hurt by the great man's passing.

Harold Pineckney, a Health Department employee also termed Ike's death a great loss to the country. "He was one of the greatest generals this world has ever known."

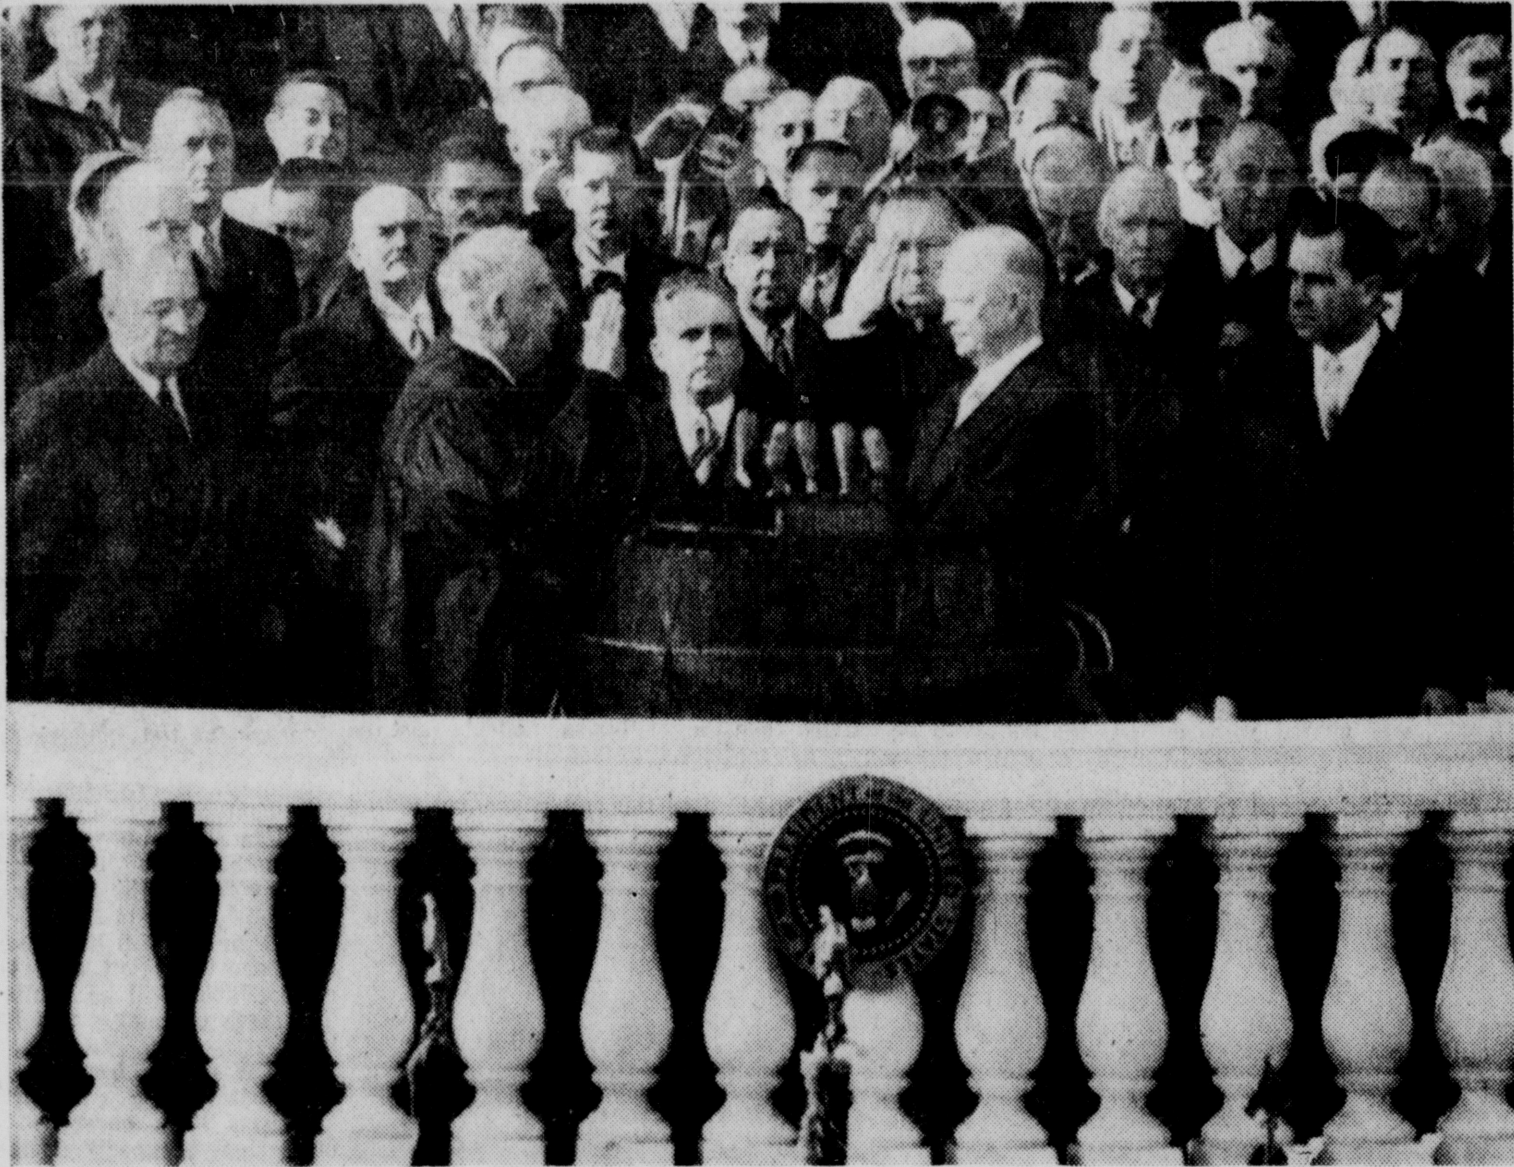

Priscilla Martin of Red Hook, referring to the President John F. Kennedy assassination said she was very grateful that President Eisenhower could "pass in peace."

FINAL RESTING PLACE—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower will be buried in this central Kansas town of Abilene, where he lived as a boy. Burial will be in a crypt beneath the chapel on the grounds of Eisenhower Museum and Library, which was dedicated here in 1962. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Ike's Popularity Seldom Matched in U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the day he entered West Point as a plebe to the day he left the White House 50 years later, Dwight David Eisenhower achieved personal popularity seldom matched in America. His grin and folksy nickname were his hallmarks.

There was a simple plainsman's eloquence about Eisenhower that touched Americans. He had no flair as an orator, little sophisticated wit, and no flamboyance.

But "I Like Ike," was a national sentiment—so much so that the Democratic and Republican parties both sought to make him president; even while his political persuasion was unknown.

Only GOPer in Generation
He was a career soldier who called war "this damnable thing," who said he hoped to see "people in my profession permanently put out of a job."

It was characteristic of Ike that in his speech to the 1968 Republican National Convention—pipet to the delegates from his hospital room—he subordinated politics to a plea for "traveling the pathways of peace, with honor and justice."

Peace and Honor. The words surfaced again and again in a brilliant career that was a succession of peaks with few valleys: general of the Army, allied commander in chief for honor and justice.

Peace and Honor. The words surfaced again and again in a brilliant career that was a succession of peaks with few valleys: general of the Army, allied commander in chief for eral of Allied powers in the European theater, chief of staff of the Army, president of Columbia University, two terms as President of the United States.

Always he spoke of the strength of America. "Let us first remind ourselves of the greatness of this nation and its people," he told the 1968 Republican convention. "Let's not waste time this year searching out someone to blame, even though some seem more disposed to concede rather than to stand firmly for America."

Greeted Word on Nixon
Less than 12 hours after he spoke, Eisenhower was stricken with his third heart attack of the year—the sixth one since 1955. He was unable to watch the convention on television; but was told that Richard M. Nixon, his vice president, had been chosen as the Republicans' 1968 standard bearer.

"I am delighted," were the words relayed from the hospital room. "You know I am an honorary delegate and could I have been there and voted, then the total number of votes for Nixon would have been 693 instead of 692."

He had endorsed Nixon shortly before the convention started, the first time Eisenhower had used his prestige publicly to attempt to influence the party's choice of a nominee.

Nixon responded in his acceptance speech by declaring: "Let's win this one for Ike." A few days later Eisenhower suffered his seventh heart attack.

The 34th President of the United States was the third of the seven sons of David and Ida Stover Eisenhower. One of Ike's brothers, Paul, died in infancy; the others were successes in their own right: Arthur, a banker; Edgar, a lawyer; Earl, an electrical engineer; Milton, a government official and college president; and Roy, a druggist.

Their grandfather traveled west with the wagon trains in 1878 and settled near Abilene, Kan. Their father failed with his general store and moved his family to Denison, Tex., where Dwight was born Oct. 14, 1890. A year later the family returned to Abilene and the father took a job in a creamery.

Young Eisenhower graduated

61st in a class of 164 from West Point in 1915. As a lieutenant at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., he met Denver girl Mamie Geneva Doud at a party. They were married July 1, 1916. A son, Dwight Doud, born a year later, died of scarlet fever at 3. A second son, John Sheldon Doud, followed his father to West Point.

In the 1930s, then Maj. Eisenhower accompanied Gen. Douglas MacArthur to the Philippines. He came to the attention of Gen. George C. Marshall, the Army chief of staff, who summoned Eisenhower to Washington. Ike was sent to London to make recommendations about the organization and development of American forces in Europe. To his surprise, he was named to the European Theater command with orders to execute his own plans.

Eisenhower first headed the expeditionary force to North Africa in 1942 and early the next year was made commander in chief of all Allied forces in the North African campaign.

In 1943, Eisenhower was named Allied commander for the invasion of Europe. D-Day came on June 6, 1944.

He directed the Allied forces to victory over Germany and presided over surrender ceremonies. Soon after, he returned to Washington to become Army chief of staff, holding the post until 1948 when he became president of Columbia University.

Summoned by Truman

But President Harry S. Truman summoned him to Washington to serve temporarily as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Later he took a longer leave of absence to organize and command North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces.

The affection the nation felt for Ike paid off in the 1952 election. He had a plurality of more than 6.5 million votes over Democrat Adlai Stevenson, carrying 39 of the 48 states. He did even better in his 1956 re-election, topping Stevenson by 9.5 million votes.

The Korean War was ended by an armistice in Eisenhower's first term after a dramatic visit to South Korea before his inauguration.

It was in the Eisenhower years that both the United States and Russia developed hydrogen bombs, engaging in a grim race for superiority. It was also the time when the Space Age dawned with unmanned satellites. Man traveled under atomic power under the sea for the first time.

In 1954 the Supreme Court declared the segregation of schools to be unconstitutional. Three years later, Eisenhower became the first president since Reconstruction to use federal troops to enforce a court order—the integration of schools in Little Rock, Ark.

The United States, under Eisenhower, severed relations with Cuba after Fidel Castro's revolution, but it did not support the Hungarian uprising.

Eisenhower sent Marines to Lebanon at that country's request after a coup in neighboring Iraq. But he criticized England and France after their attack on Egypt.

In the twilight of his second term, the United States and Russia appeared to be moving closer than at any time since World War II toward the détente that Eisenhower so long had sought.

The Russian leader, Premier Nikita Khrushchev had visited this country and asked Eisenhower to visit his. A summit conference was planned.

Then, May 1, 1960, disaster struck. A U-2 spy plane piloted by Francis Gary Powers was shot down over Soviet Russia.

An angered Khrushchev scuttled the Paris summit before it got started and the uproar that ensued cast a shadow that lingered for months.

Say It Ain't So -- Woodstock Dem on Coalition

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Apparently a few Democratic eyebrows are more than a few voices are being raised—especially among Woodstock party members, over Democratic County Chairman Dr. Gerald P. Gorman's statements earlier this week suggesting a Democratic-Conservative coalition.

In a Freeman interview prior to the unofficial Democratic County Convention Wednesday, which the chairmen recessed until April 15 for lack of candidates, Dr. Gorman said he felt cross endorsement of Democratic and Conservative candidates would "strengthen" the Democratic Party.

Taking issue with Dr. Gorman is a group of Woodstock Democrats who just can't buy the Conservative philosophy. Headed by Peter Grad, they claim that "if the usual reliable reporting of The Kingston Daily Freeman of March 26 is accurate, the Democratic Party may be a major contributor to its continuous rapid decline in New York State."

"If indeed a county-wide Democratic-Conservative coalition is possible and if the Democratic County Chairman believes this is not 'intellectual prostitution but a realistic attitude politically,' then the principle of the Democratic Party itself has been discarded here in Kingston in 1969.

"If not a single word of protest was raised at the unofficial Democratic convention of March 26—and apparently none were heard—then the Democratic candidates accepting the nomination for elective office in Ulster County this year are not worthy of the support of the enrolled Democratic electorate."

"Recently the well-publicized 'Sorenson Report discussed, ammended and voted on by all New York State Democratic committeemen and women. The purpose of the convention was 'a determination to improve the party as an instrument for progress in this state.'

Special

"It further states that 'to face our problems and our presently sad state of affairs frankly, objectively openly is a beginning. To act on them is a necessity.'"

"The principles, the guiding philosophy, the history, yes even the party leaders of the Democratic and Conservative party are diametrically opposed in almost every way."

"Even the most cursory examination of the two party platforms will disclose the utmost divergence of stands on most issues. 'For example,' Grad states, 'the Democratic Party is for and the Conservative Party is against—one man one vote laws, farm subsidies, minimum wage legislation, anti-discrimination laws, aid to education, the United Nations, the nuclear test ban treaty...'

Grad, quoting the Sorenson report again states, "It is an inescapable conclusion that the Democratic Party in this state must be revitalized and strengthened if adverse trends are to be reversed in the coming election."

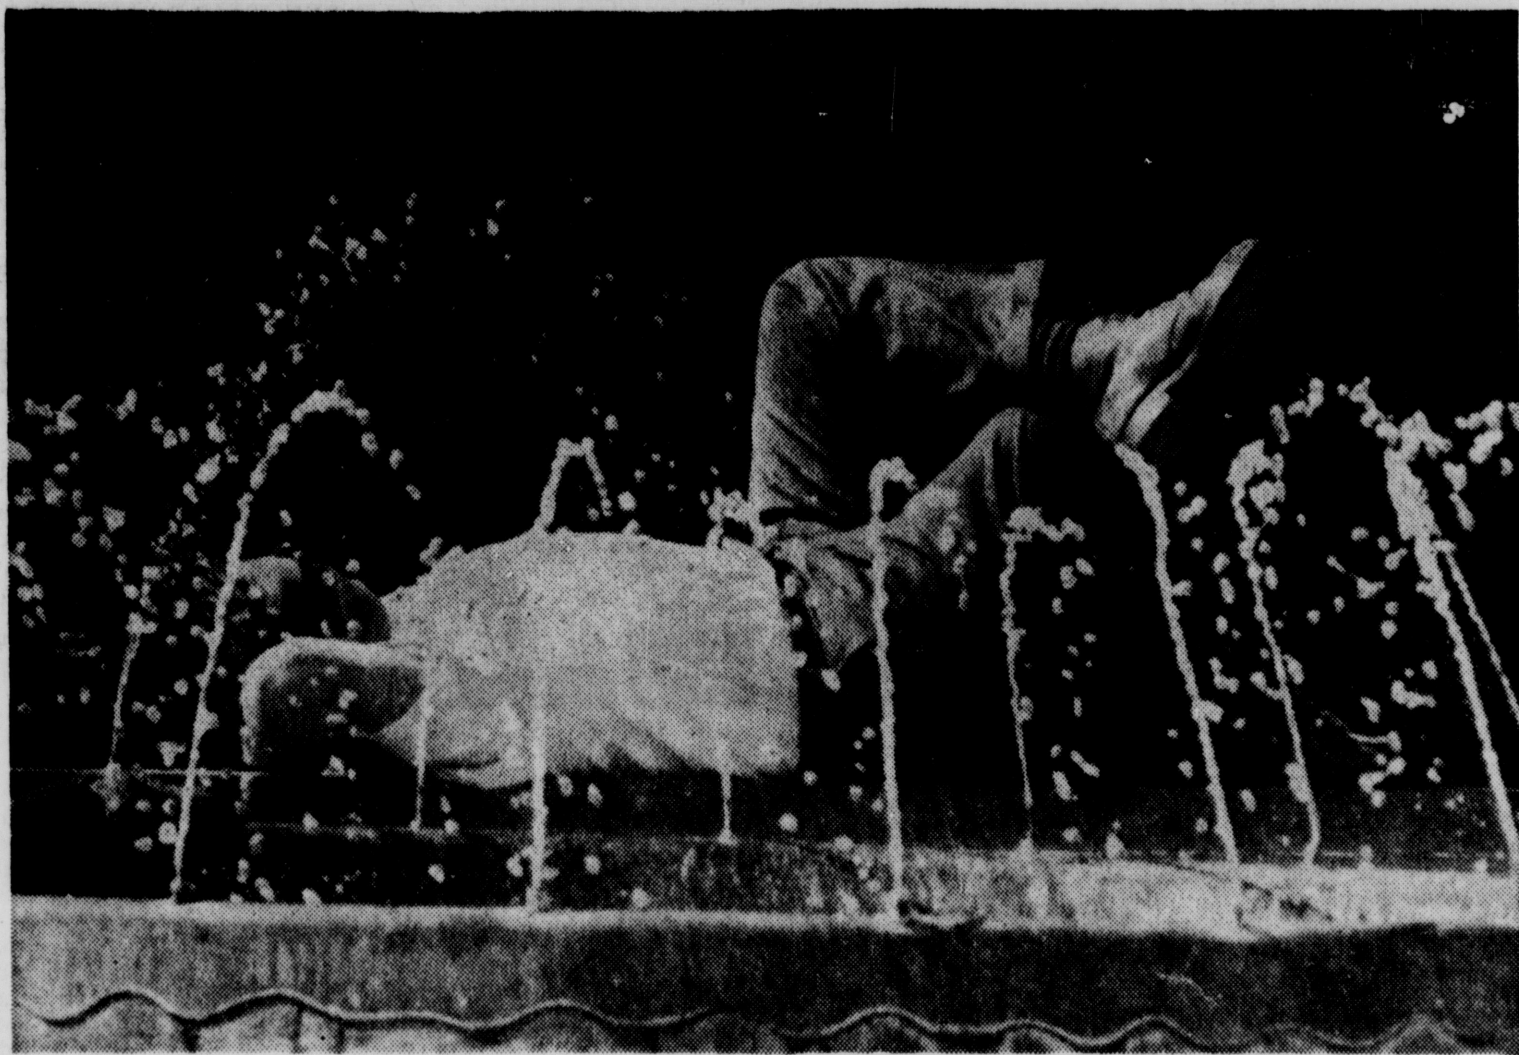

"A coalition with the Conservative Party or even the acceptance of Conservative Party endorsements by any Democratic Party and therefore certain to lead to defeat of the party in the state and in the nation at the cost of a few 'realistic' local victories."

Grad's statement is an outgrowth of a discussion held among Woodstock Democrats including Peter Rakov, former town chairman Charles J. Tiano and Mrs. Chester (Jean) Miller.

The Ulster County Democratic Party will reconvene its convention at 8 p.m. April 15 in the Court House to name its candidates for county clerk and county legislator posts. It is expected that no candidate will be nominated for coroner.

Prior to Wednesday's original convention, the name of a prominent Conservative, Bernie Singer, was being advanced for the county clerk nomination as was the name of a Woodstock accountant, Joseph V. Turck.

Cardinal-Designate Cooke:

Ear for Individual Woes

NEW YORK (AP) — Archbishop Terence J. Cooke presides over the richest see in the United States, serves as vicar general of U.S. armed forces, rubs shoulders with the mighty and takes a place on their councils.

But to associates of the cardinal-designate, Cooke is "a real priest," humble, hard-working, with an ear for individual problems.

Cooke, one of four new American cardinals named Friday by Pope Paul VI, will be formally elevated at a secret consistory in Rome April 28.

The bespectacled, 48-year-old spiritual leader was named archbishop of New York barely a year ago, on March 9, succeeding the late Francis Cardinal Spellman. He said he accepted the post "with the deepest feelings of humility and realizing my own limitations."

A native of the Bronx, Cooke served there as a parish priest before taking a post with Catholic Charities in 1954.

"No matter how busy he was, he was able to find time for a kind word or give someone his attention," a coworker recalled. "In my estimation, the only way I can put it, he was a real priest."

Cooke moved on to St. Joseph's Seminary as procurator. He served as choirmaster and was active on the softball team. "He was a very efficient man and well liked," a priest said.

When he can find time among his spiritual duties, the cardinal-designate likes to play a few rounds of golf with his older brother, Joseph, a businessman from Scarsdale, N.Y. There is also a sister, Katherine.

Aside from the hectic, teeming New York Archdiocese, Cooke found time to spend Christmas overseas with U.S. servicemen, a custom begun by Cardinal Spellman. Cooke also serves on the National Advisory Commission on Violence.

Minutes after the Pope's designation today, he was off to a Washington meeting of the commission.

In Washington Cooke said, "It is with deep gratitude and with a feeling of humility that I have learned of this designation by our Holy Father, Pope Paul VI. 'I see this as a further opportunity to serve the church and my fellow men as completely as possible. I am aware that this appointment belongs to the people of New York more than to me personally. May God bless them all.'"

Details of the three public hearings scheduled this month by the Hudson River Valley Commission have been released by Fergus Reid III, chairman of the New York State planning agency.

The first hearing — on a $100,000 Rockland County water tower that would rise 90 feet — has been scheduled for 8 p.m., Monday, April 7, at the Valley Cottage School, Lake Road, in the Hamlet of Valley Cottage, part of the Town of Clarkstown.

The proposed tower would be a ball-shaped tank located on a hill well back from the Hudson River, and HRVC studies indicate that the tower would be visible from the River only from an area adjacent to

Last year provided Cooke two memorable days at St. Patrick's Cathedral, one joyous, one somber.

On April 4, he was installed as archbishop, in a stately, magnificent ceremony. President Johnson and Mrs. John F. Kennedy headed the list of guests. In a keynote address, Cooke said the church must move forward "with no undue haste yet with deliberate speed."

Two months later, the body of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy lay at the cathedral's altar, and tens of thousands of grieving New Yorkers came to pay their last respects. The archbishop alternated with other priests in offering communion.

Cooke's interest extends far into secular problems. He created a nonsectarian committee to study Roman Catholic educational problems. He specified concern for improving slum schools and decentralizing the curriculum.

In a more traditional vein, he staunchly defended Pope Paul's controversial encyclical continuing the ban on birth control.

The new cardinal provided a key to his philosophy at his installation as archbishop: "We must not hesitate to be flexible, to think out and then try out new ideas, to promote necessary changes, to consult democratically, to tap the resources of all within the church."

HRVC Lists Three Hearings, Two Are Scheduled for Orange

TARRYTOWN South Nyack, which includes the Tappan Zee Bridge. Possible scenic impairment caused the Commission to call the hearing, Reid said.

A second hearing — on a proposed 15 story senior-citizen high-rise apartment at the foot of Broadway in the City of Newburgh — has been scheduled for 8 p.m., Tuesday, April 15, at the Gedney Avenue Memorial School, 300 Gedney Avenue, Newburgh.

Siting of the tower could partially obscure the natural slope of the west bank from across the Hudson, and it also could tend to block the view of the River itself from much of Newburgh.

The third hearing — on the proposed $170 million Roseton fossil-fuel-powered electric generating plant on the site of the former Jova Brick Works in Orange County — is scheduled for 8 p.m., Monday, April 21, at the Middle Hope Elementary School, Overlook Drive, in the Town of Newburgh.

Possible impairment of both scenic and natural resources were the reasons that the Commission decided to call the hearing on the power plant, according to Reid, who pointed out that the problem of thermal pollution exists not just for nuclear plants but for large power stations of all kinds.

Anyone with an interest in any of these projects is invited to attend the hearings, and to testify if they so wish. Further details may be obtained from the Hudson River Valley Commission, 105 White Plains Road, Tarrytown, N. Y. 10591.

In advance of the April session, Gov. Claude Kirk and leaders of the Florida legislature have come out for a line-holding budget despite record increases in funds sought by state agencies. A special session there in 1968 raised taxes by $228 million a year, mostly for schools.

Arizona's legislature, committed to holding the line on taxes, is studying a bond issue or some other means of financing needed university buildings and state offices.

Gov. Ronald Reagan has pledged that there will be no new taxes this year and plans to propose that much of an anticipated $200 million surplus be used for income tax cuts.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York has proposed to balance state books by raising the sales tax from two to three cents on the dollar and cutting state expenditures by 5 per cent across the board.

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania offered eight alternative tax plans. But he indicated his preference for a 3 per cent tax on total income. Two previous governors suggested an income tax for Pennsylvania, but it didn't get anywhere.

The new governor of Illinois, Richard B. Ogilvie, said the state is on the brink of bankruptcy. He asked departments to slash spending as much as 10 per cent and said revenue must be increased, but he won't have his tax program ready until about April 1. An income tax proposal is under study.

The speaker of Tennessee's Senate, Frank C. Gorrell, said "It will be virtually impossible to get a tax increase through this legislature. But the Tennessee Education Association has waged an intensive drive for more money for schools, and that would require a substantial tax hike."

Indiana's legislative session ended recently with legislators unable to agree on increases in sales and income taxes. Also victims of a deadlock between the state's Senate and House were proposed increases in liquor and cigarette taxes. A jump from six to eight cents a gallon in state tax for diesel fuel and gasoline plus increases in motor vehicles fees did win approval from the legislators.

Ohio's Gov. James A. Rhodes dropped his six-year policy of 1.0 new taxes and gave his approval to a gross receipts tax to finance a vocational-technical education program. The governor has refused to allow any more funds for welfare. Instead, he has concentrated on the vocational-technical program in the belief it will reduce welfare rolls.

State Legislatures Seek Ways to Balance Budgets

(The Associated Press)

State Legislatures in session throughout the nation, searching for ways to balance steadily rising budgets, are turning chiefly to new or higher income and sales taxes.

These two taxes figure in the revenue-raising plans of 20 states, a national survey by the Associated Press showed today. Four states are considering starting a state income tax, seven are considering increases, two may adopt a state sales tax and seven are considering increases.

Four states are considering increases in cigarette taxes, three in gasoline taxes, two in liquor taxes.

And in some capitals, tax trends still haven't developed. Legislatures are meeting, or will meet later this year, in 47 states.

The survey showed that tax proposals were directed, in descending order of frequency, at personal income, sales, cigarette, liquor, oil and gas production, various licenses, mining and personal property.

Forty-four states already have sales taxes, 38 personal income taxes and 40 corporate income taxes.

The biggest user of the state tax dollar is education, well ahead of welfare and highways.

A personal income tax has been formally proposed in Pennsylvania and Washington State, and is under study in Illinois. A tax on personal and corporate incomes has been suggested in Maine.

Increases in income taxes have been proposed in Maryland, Indiana, North Dakota, Missouri, Georgia, New Mexico and Colorado.

May Adopt Sales Taxes

Oregon and Vermont may adopt sales taxes. Boosts in that tax have been proposed in Maryland, Indiana, New York, Utah, North Dakota, South Carolina and Georgia.

Among the handful of states trying to hold the line on state taxation is California.

Gov. Ronald Reagan has pledged that there will be no new taxes this year and plans to propose that much of an anticipated $200 million surplus be used for income tax cuts.

Gordon Gives Up Onteora Job

20-Year School Service Ends

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

BOICEVILLE

"The banner of leadership must pass to younger, more aggressive and conscientious servants."

So said Philip Gordon, submitting his resignation as a trustee of the Onteora Central School Board of Education. The resignation, effective immediately, ended 20 years of service by Gordon to Onteora and education. He had served the Onteora District since its creation, and had been president of the board for most of that time.

In his letter of resignation, Gordon said his decision was not made quickly and came as a result of mixed emotions. "Public school education faces some difficult times ahead and is traveling along a road that bristles with uncertainty," he noted. "Because of this, more and more demands on my time with the kind of attention and devotion to duty that I find is a part of my character," Gordon said. Adding that "one must also equate these demands with his own personal life: the attention to business and health."

Gordon said he had "reluctantly concluded that the latter takes precedence."

The Onteora board accepted Gordon's resignation with "deep regret" at a special meeting March 24. At that session, the board also named Richard O. Langham, of Woodstock, and W. Jack Kahn, of West Hurley, to serve as president and vice president of the board respectively for the remainder of the 1968-69 school year.

Langham said the board accepted the resignation with regret, but with full understanding of the problems facing its long-time member. The new president also lauded his predecessor's "unselfish, devoted service."

Gordon, who owns and operates a pharmacy in Phenicia, said it had been gratifying to work for so many years with both professional and lay people who had shown such willingness to give time and talent to school and educational affairs. He was appreciative, he said, of the cooperation and support accorded him as president of the board; noted he was "happy to have played a part" in Onteora's current reputation for "excellence in education."

Dr. Harold R. Snyder, superintendent of the Onteora Schools, also paid tribute to Gordon, noting that the district owes the long-time trustee "a large debt of gratitude for his many years of unselfish, devoted service."

MANY CANDIDATES — Despite the fact that it's often described as "the toughest job next to the Presidency," there are a host of announced and rumored candidates for the office of Mayor of New York City. All those shown, except former mayor Robert Wagner, have announced candidacies for it. Wagner is the latest rumored. Mayor John Lindsay is seeking a second term despite the fact that he's been under fire throughout most of the first.

Council Announces Breakfast Speaker

KINGSTON The annual Kingston Area Council of Churches Men's communion breakfast will be held this Sunday after 7 a.m. service at the Fair Street Reformed Church.

Guest speaker at the breakfast will be the Rev. Isaac C. Rottenberg who will discuss The Christ and The Gospel of Confrontation. The Rev. Edwin C. Coon, pastor of the host church and the Rev. Ebenezer Mane, assistant will celebrate the service of Holy Communion. The guest speaker is from a Jewish rabbinical family on his father's side and Dutch Calvinistic on his mother's side. His father served the Reformed Church as a minister in the Netherlands. During the Nazi occupation, he was arrested and later died in a concentration camp.

Earned Degree

The Rev. Mr. Rottenberg received his law degree from the University of Leiden. Coming to the United States in 1948, he studied at Hope College, Holland, Mich. and New Brunswick and Western Seminaries. After receiving his theological degree from New Brunswick he has served as pastor of the Reformed Church of New Shrewsbury, N.J. He is presently executive secretary of resource and development program in terpretation for the Reformed Church in America.

In the evening the final union Lenten service sponsored by the church council will be held at St. James United Methodist Church with Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn of Temple Emanuel demonstrating the Passover Seder. He will be accompanied by a group of young people from the Temple who will assist him. He will speak on Atonement from the Hebrew tradition. A discussion of Atonement from the Christian concept will follow.

The Rev. Harry Robinson is host pastor. The Rev. Daniel L. Ogden, pastor of the Port Ewen Reformed Church will introduce guests as chairman of the council's faith and life committee.

Missing Youth Found Dead of Gunshot Wound

PHOENICIA

A 15-year-old Staten Island boy who was the object of an extensive search through the woods of this area, was found dead of a gunshot wound by members of a posse that began the hunt for the missing boy at 8:30 a.m. today.

Robert Kirsburg, of 250 Sharp Avenue, Staten Island, had been visiting at the home of his aunt, Beatrice Swartz here, and at 5:30 p.m. Friday he reportedly went into the woods carrying a .22 rifle.

When he did not return authorities were notified. A search party of more than 20 state troopers from area stations was organized in charge of Zone Sgt. Donald Paulson and this morning the group along with a large unit from the Phenicia Fire Company entered the woods.

Bloodhounds from Troop K State Police Headquarters in Hawthorne were transported here to take part in the hunt.

Troopers and County Coroner William S. Keyser are at the scene pressing an investigation. Troopers at the Kingston Zone headquarters said the boy died of a gunshot wound, "possibly self-inflicted", but further details were not available.

Fare Increase At Rhinecliff By Penn Central

RHINECLIFF

Passengers on the Penn Central Railroad embarking or disembarking from Rhinecliff will be affected by the company's fare increases starting Tuesday.

George Piccioni, station agent, gave an example fares to New York City. The present one-way ticket is $4.21. From April 1 the fare will be $4.75. The round trip to New York is presently $8.42. Starting Tuesday the fare will be $9.50.

The fare increases are in line with the recent Public Service Commission approval of an increase in Penn Central passenger rates in northeastern New York. Rates have not been affected south of Poughkeepsie, at this time.

Rhinecliff is serviced with a passenger train going south to New York at 10:15 a.m. and 4:15 p.m. daily. Arriving from New York daily are three trains at 2:15, 6:15, and 10:15 p.m.

Red Hook Trio Faces Hearing

RED HOOK

Three area youths will appear in Dutchess County Court at 10 a.m. Tuesday on charges of second degree assault and resisting arrest.

The three, Michael J. Rowland, 19, of Staatsburg; Clayton Brizze Jr., 19, and Jeffrey Potts, 18, both of Red Hook, were arrested by Red Hook patrolman Rexford Main for sniffling glue to the rear of a Red Hook tavern on Jan. 27.

The three are charged with obstructing governmental administration, glue sniffing, as well as the former charges. Rowland and Coon are also charged with trying to escape and Rowland is charged with illegal possession of a loaded gun.

Charge Ellenville Woman After Stabbing Incident

ELLENVILLE

A 31-year-old woman resident who was exonerated by a grand jury earlier this week of a charge involving the alleged theft of more than $800, was back in the Ulster County jail today facing a second degree assault charge in connection with a stabbing complaint.

Sandra Heyward, of 9 Broadhead Street, was arrested Friday night by Sgt. John Phillips and Patrolman Norman Green on a warrant issued by Police Justice Ronald Elias. The defendant is accused of stabbing Mrs. Phrynces Friedman, 40, of the same address on the forehead and left shoulder.

Arraigned before Judge Elias, the woman pleaded innocent to the assault count and asked for a preliminary hearing which was set for Tuesday, April 1. In lieu of $1,000 bail she was committed to the county jail.

According to police, Sgt. Otis Brown and Patrolman Roy

Strouse were on night patrol when they were stopped by a resident who reported a woman was injured and lying on a ground bleeding on Bogardus Street. Police hurried to the area and found Mrs. Friedman. They took her to the Ellenville Community Hospital, where she was treated and later signed herself out of the hospital.

The injured woman later accused the defendant of stabbing her. The investigation was continued by Green and Phillips, who made the arrest.

Police had arrested the Heyward woman on Feb. 13 as she was boarding a bus at the Walden Terminal for New York City. She was returned here and accused of taking more than $800 from Larry Feld at a local motel where the two were reportedly staying.

On Tuesday an Ulster County grand jury dismissed a charge of grand larceny in the third degree and the woman was released from custody.

Old 7th Ward Cleanup Continues, Will Demolish Eight More Homes

KINGSTON

Residents of the old Seventh Ward are "really getting excited" about the cleanup of their neighborhood as shaping up, Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan said in announcing the completion of current city demolition in the area.

"With people getting interested the way they are and with a little initiative, the area can be made into a good residential one for low income families," he suggested.

Listing city and privately owned properties which have been demolished recently, with land cleared, the mayor said that there are still eight more privately-owned properties slated for demolition. Letters have been mailed from the city to the property owners informing them that demolition is necessary. Mayor Garrahan also noted on the fact that so many more private properties are being returned to the city through tax sales in recent years.

He reported yesterday that the 1966 tax sale, as of December, 1968, added 21 more properties to the list of city acquisitions. Only two were reported 10 years ago.

Mayor Garrahan said that private property owned by Zale Liese at 24-28 Mary's Avenue had also been demolished.

Demolition was accomplished by William Van Kleeck Sons, Inc.

Enthusiasm about the improved appearance of the ward, the mayor concluded, "It looks as though you can do something with the area now."

He also suggested that the land which lies between Broadway and Wurts Street, which parallels it, be included in future urban renewal programs.

Mayor Garrahan also commented on the fact that so many more private properties are being returned to the city through tax sales in recent years.

Ike Was There

If the essence of Dwight David Eisenhower could be summed up in a one-word epitaph, it would be simply: "Ike."

Here was the professional soldier who rose from relative obscurity at the beginning of the greatest war in history to supreme command of the greatest assemblage of armies in history, who later served his country for eight years in the highest position of responsibility any man can attain.

Yet he was always "Ike."

Looking back from the turbulent present, the years of the Eisenhower administration seem calm and stable. They were not, but if they seemed so then as well as now, it was only because of the presence of this immensely popular president in the White House. There was something about this most uncommon common man that inspired confidence and faith that no matter how beset the nation was by crises and challenges, nothing dire would happen as long as Ike was there.

Beset the nation was:

Those were the years when the cold war was really frigid — when a man named Khrushchev came to power in Russia to strut the world's stage for a time with his rhetoric of nuclear diplomacy and ballistic blackmail; when a man named Ho Chi Minh was mauling the French in Indo-China; when a man named Faubus in Little Rock, Ark., was fomenting the gravest federal-state crisis since the Civil War; when a U.S. vice president was being spat upon in South America; when the world hovered on the edge of Armageddon as war broke out in the Middle East; when freedom-loving men everywhere agonized as Hungary was ground under the heel; when the nation plunged briefly into its worst recession since the 1930s; when Americans indulged in an orgy of self-doubt because Russia had launched something called a Sputnik into space; when words like "agonizing reappraisal," "brinkman ship," "U-2," "summit" and "missile gap" were part of the vocabulary of reproach against the administration.

Yet they seemed like calm years, because Ike was there.

Now the general has lost his last battle, after besting the scythe-bearer in encounter after encounter. He went down fighting, he surrendered reluctantly. More than that can be asked of no soldier.

There is one politician who does not think that President Nixon will be his party's standard bearer in 1972. At the recent Legislative Correspondents' dinner in Albany, Democratic Leader Joseph Zaretzki wished Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller good health "until 1972 and that I shall be there to vote for your Democratic opponent for President of the United States." That's a long shot.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, the Harlem Congressman who was expelled by the House only to be re-elected overwhelmingly, is weighing a race for the Democratic nomination for Mayor. Five others have already announced, but Powell would be the only Negro candidate.

Former Census Bureau head Richard M. Scammon, a leading electoral expert, in theory is for direct election, of Presidents. But he would settle for the Nixon plan because "the urgent need is to change the present system." Nixon allots electoral votes by districts, not the present state unit rule.

Man of War—Man of Peace

Henry J. Taylor Says The Great Flood in Red China

Behind the noise of Soviet border clashes a great flood is on in Red China. It threatens Mao Tse-tung's immense gaseous diffusion atom-bomb plant, which covers 14 acres near Lanchow and takes hydroelectric power from the Yellow River.

In fact, it is not at all impossible that Mao welcomes the noises about the border clashes to divert the attention of the Chinese people from their domestic woes.

Again and again throughout China's crumbled centuries a rushing flood with the husky voice of a tiger has bounded free of the Yellow River at the Great Bend to engulf an area a third the size of the United States in a mud-filled sea.

Yet as early as China's hallowed First Emperor, Shi-Huang-Ti, this brilliant man who calculated that the solar year had 365 1/4 days — so intelligent was he — the problem of the Yellow River floods was solved.

Nevertheless, as now, there were terrible repetitions.

The First Emperor's solution was to plant in the shape of a crescent at the Great Bend, and extending far back into the plains, a tremendous forest of deep-rooted willows. Workers were employed and scrupulously supervised in far larger numbers than Cheops used to build his Giza pyramids 4,800 years ago. This solution was a stroke of engineering genius.

With the start of any new overflow from the bank the vast interlacing of the willow trees and roots, like a giant natural mat, collected the oncoming mud and silt from the water and automatically built a barrier which grew as the waters rose.

Soon the waters held themselves in check and were channelled by their own deposits of mud and silt back into the true course of the river.

Yet along with this perfect solution, and as ancient, there always existed in China a saying that when the Yellow River does break loose at the Great Bend the flood which follows means that the ruling dynasty will fall.

All ancient classic Chinese soothsayers, proclaiming star-written omens, claimed that each time this break-loose occurred the warning proved true: the dynasty did fall — the Han, the Tang, the Ming, the Manchu, all.

However, there is a more mundane explanation. The waters escape because of graft, corruption and inefficiency in the regime and the negligence of its leaders who divert money and manpower to other things than tending to the willows.

The regimes fell because when this neglect occurs other equivalent neglects are unbearably widespread in the government. The flood is only a summarizing symbol.

There were bloody battles inside China during all of 1967 and 1968. Behind the scenes, these continue. Warlordism, region by region, remains the order of the day. Railroad transportation power grids are repeatedly crippled. It generally takes more than 70 hours now to go from Peking to Canton on a train. During the 1965-68 famine throughout most of China, as devastating as the present flood, Mao exported 200,000 tons of rice a year to Castro's Cuba. Was he more interested in his hungry people or in helping America's enemy in the Western Hemisphere — a Red Cuba about which the average Chinese couldn't conceivably care less?

Recently 285 overseas Chinese organizations, representing 17 million overseas Chinese in 47 countries beyond Mao's grip, signed an advertisement protesting the admission of Red China into the United Nations. They asked the free world to "refrain from giving aid and comfort to Mao."

Only last week five large Chinese benevolent organizations in our country published a similar plea. And for the last three years the voting margin in the U.N. against seating Mao's regime has widened. The February Gallup poll, in turn, showed that Americans remain solidly against Red China's admission, 54 per cent to 33, and the Harris poll 54 per cent to 32.

Yet color-blind Sen. J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, leads a clique in the Senate and around the country and blesses such contrived organizations as the so-called National Committee on U.S.-China relations a pet project of McGeorge Bundy of the cash-happy Ford Foundation, who want the Red regime in.

The one hope for freedom in Red China is to discredit the Communist regime. The flood is doing its share. Colorblind Fulbright, et al, seem to think they can fight communism by helping it to succeed.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

There was a birthday party at our house last night. The man next door had reached 72. He is short, has blue-gray wavy hair, dead-head blue eyes, and he walks with the rocking gait of a pigeon. Mr. Walter Lehmann Sr. is a rare man. He lives alone in a big beautiful house and he fights the depressing loneliness without whimpering.

His Betty died a few years ago in a series of heart attacks. Friends began to invite him to dinner and, as an hors d'oeuvre, managed to have a 55-year-old widow at the same table. They were helpful. No one understood that Wally Lehmann had secretly assessed his entire life, and found that the shining light of Betty, once extinguished, could not be turned on again.

And yet, he found himself walking rapidly through the rooms to do things which managed to drop out of the bottom of his mind before he reached the kitchen, or the bedroom. In a fit of recklessness, Wally decided to pander to his love of music. So he bought a player piano, an organ, a full set of drums, and returned an old violin.

The sounds which emerged from his house shattered eardrums. It sounded like the Jolly Green Giant dropping his shoes. He attended races to kill the clock — trotters, flats and dogs. In the late hours, he bathed, put on his pajamas, dropped into bed, and counted all the visions he could see on a dark ceiling.

He did all his shopping, tried cooking, and gave it up.

The house retained its smell of newness. He made a habit of dining with a few other men who had no one at home. This was good for an hour or two. Wally didn't know what to do with all the others. Money was no problem. He had a prosperous business — The Ideal Fence Company in Long Island — and his son was running it so well that it expanded beyond Wally's dreams.

Money will buy the friendship of cheats. I watched this man; I waited for him to crack. He didn't. He keeps memories of Betty all over the house, and even in the closets. When I went golfing, I took him along. This killed four hours in his life came when my daughter Kathi — then 11 years old — decided, without consultation with her parents, to become Mr. Lehmann's mother.

When her homework was finished, she would go into his house and he would ask her if blue drapes would conflict with gold wall paper. It would. The little old lady and the young septuagenarian chattered like two old cronies. Still, if there was disagreement on how to hang the Christmas lights, he deferred to her.

Little by little, without guile, Kelly and I, in addition to Karen and Gayle, found ourselves joining their family. The situation was ridiculous. There was a tiny and beautiful three-year-old down the block who insisted on joining. Every morning she walked primly up to Wally's door, rang the bell, and, holding her doll tight to her bosom, was admitted. She was there for a glass of milk and a doughnut. In the past year, Wally has never failed to have them on the table when the bell rang.

His little women, I fear, have enslaved him. He has begun to enjoy his prison. Nor does he want to escape. For a week, the women in my house have been preparing for Wally Lehmann's 72nd birthday. They brought outrageous ties, gold golf tees, a gold club, and Kelly served a buffet of turkey, baked ham, homemade potato salad and lemon cake.

All of the well-nourished guests tossed their diet vows out the window. The men shot pool and drank beer. The night air was cool and sweet. Wally's "mother" requested him to come back inside because there were birthday cards to read.

"Okay, Mom," he said. "It's my birthday and I'm ready for anything." He sat and read the florid sentiments without a flaw. The last one was entitled "A Birthday Greeting for a Dear Son." Wally opened it and swallowed in silence.

"To My Son," it read. "To hope that your birthday is happily spent — in ways you'll approve one hundred per cent — And then that the year is so grand for you. Son — You couldn't imagine a happier one."

We laughed. He wept . . .

Drew Pearson Says Rep. Colmer of Mississippi Blocks Aid to Education

Dictator Ayub
One foreign leader on whom

Drew Pearson has consistently put the bee is President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan. Almost ten years ago, Dec. 7, 1959, shortly before Eisenhower arrived in Pakistan, Pearson visited Karachi and reported on Ayub's high-handed tactics. One hotel manager, he said, was arrested for playing phonograph records too loud, and three bus drivers were arrested for draining oil on the side of the street.

Pearson has spotlighted Ayub's dictatorial operations, frequently anti-American ever since. Among other things, he called American military aid to Ayub unwise, partly because it offended India, partly because it depended upon one man.

This week President Ayub bowed to Pakistani political demand and resigned.

WASHINGTON — The bill for federal aid to education, despite a pressing need for passage has come squarely up against the obstruction of 79-year-old Rep. William Colmer of Mississippi. As chairman of the House Rules Committee, he has life and death power over legislation.

Rep. Carl Perkins of Kentucky, hard-working chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, has a bill for the five-year extension of aid for elementary and secondary schools in final shape and ready to pass. It was to be one of the first acts of Congress. He had wanted to bring the school aid bill to a vote prior to the Easter recess — which will begin April 3. However, Colmer, no friend of education, has chosen this time for a visit back home in Mississippi. As chairman, Colmer alone is able to OK a hearing by his Rules Committee.

Perkins was so furious over the Mississippiian's filibustering tactics that he protested to Speaker John McCormack. The Speaker promptly called a meeting in his chambers attended by Perkins, Majority Leader Carl Albert, D-Okla., and Whip Hale Boggs D-La. They put through a long distance phone call to Colmer in Pascagoula.

McCormack pleaded with Colmer to return to Washington so the House could pass the education bill before Easter. Colmer said no.

Then Rep. Albert got on the line. "Listen, Bill," he said, "you are making a bad mistake. I've made a commitment to a number of our colleagues that the House will act on this legislation before Easter, but you are preventing me from carrying out the commitment. The members won't understand this."

"Well, I'm sorry, Carl, but it's impossible for me to go wrong. After the mistake of sending the Enterprise which Kim knew would not take action, and the dispatch of backup aircraft for South Korea, the United States made no moves which Kim could convincingly interpret as aggressive. In fact, Washington bent over backward to settle the Pueblo matter peacefully, despite Kim's repeated attempts to provoke outbursts.

Kim was certain he had nothing to fear. With the United States tied down in Vietnam, he was certain Washington would do nothing that could start an outbreak in Korea. But Kim was hoping for some incident he could dramatize to his people and Kim whipped his people along by arguing the United States was planning war. But he had given people no convincing reasons to believe that war was inevitable. That is, his arguments were beginning to wear thin.

He needed some incident to prove his point.

Moreover, Kim had promised Ho Chi Minh in Hanoi that he would do something dramatic to help with the war in Vietnam.

He was supplying some planes, pilots and military supplies. But Ho clearly needed something that would take off some U.S. pressure.

Kim also strongly felt the need for more military aid from the Soviet Union and convincing reasons to demand it.

Kim used the Pueblo to "prove" to his people the United States was preparing to invade the North. President Johnson's sending the aircraft carrier Enterprise to Korean waters following the Pueblo's seizure was added "proof" of U.S. aggressive intentions.

Following the incident, the United States moved certain air units to South Korea. This perhaps reduced the pool available for Viet Nam, thus helping Hanoi.

Up to this point, events were moving as Kim had planned. Then things began to return to Washington right now," replied Chairman Colmer.

Albert then pleaded with Colmer to delegate Rep. Ray Madden of Indiana, No. 2 Democrat on the Rules Committee, as acting chairman to conduct a hearing. Again Colmer refused.

A few minutes later, Rep. Boggs placed a second long distance call to Colmer, but was told that "he is not here right now."

Note — Colmer gets around $800,000 a year for his Mississippi district through federal "impacted" school funds because the Keesler Air Force Base is located there. However, he frowns on federal school funds for the rest of the nation.

Nixon & ABM
President Nixon has strongly hinted to Republican congressional leaders that he might still drop the controversial safeguard antiballistic missile system if developments should justify it.

Chatting with the GOP congressional command over ham and eggs at the White House the other morning, he emphasized that he was going ahead only with two "prototype" ABM sites. This would require the construction of a costly electronic warning and guidance system. Approximately 60 Spartan and Spring missiles would also be built for each site. Then an additional 12 sites would be leased in case the President should decide to expand the system.

But he suggested that he might abandon the system altogether if an agreement could be negotiated with the Russians or if the prototype equipment fails to measure up technologically to the requirements.

One congressional leader, carefully recalling the President's exact words, quoted him as follows: "The duty of the President is to defend this country against any hostile attack. I am going to do this. I am going to do it in a way that will permit us to find out whether the (ABM) system works and whether an agreement can be reached with the Russians. We have got a year to determine whether we should advance or recede."

Note — The name "Safeguard" for the ABM system was suggested by Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif.

Enrique Tejera-Paris, longtime popular Venezuelan ambassador in Washington, has now been elected to the Venezuelan senate. He represents the District of Venezuela (sic), which has two senators.

The other senator will be ex-President Perez who some years ago sent Tejera-Paris into exile. Perez Jimenez was the most high-handed dictator to rule Venezuela in recent history. Scores of Venezuelan democrats were exiled.

Finally he was overthrown, jailed in Daytona Beach, Fla., then extradited to Caracas where he was convicted of theft, and himself went into exile. While in exile he was elected to the Venezuelan senate, largely as a joke. His election was compared with the victory of the hippopotamus in the Sao Paulo Zoo, elected to the Brazilian congress.

However, Perez Jimenez has taken his election seriously, and since he now enjoys senatorial immunity and cannot be arrested, he is returning to Caracas. He will sit in the senate side by side with the man whom he once exiled, Tejera-Paris, the man who helped to prosecute him for theft.

The Last Kennedy

Sen. Ted Kennedy's aides, grimly determined to prevent the assassination of the last of the Kennedy brothers, have been quietly trying to promote a bullet-proof limousine for their boss.

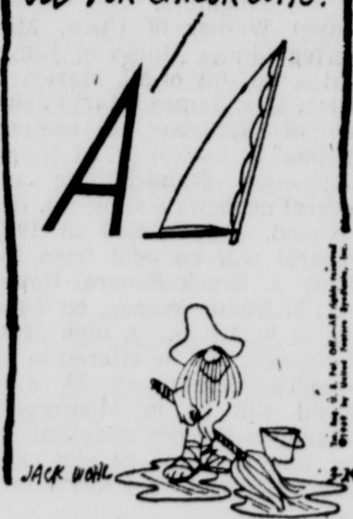

They have made delicate approaches to Republicans to find out whether the Nixon administration might assign one of the government's armored limousines to Kennedy. The car would have to be offered by the administration, the aides said, because Kennedy would never ask for it.

The Massachusetts Senator is in no imminent danger, so far as his aides know. But they want to make sure that another crackpot doesn't try to get his name in the papers by taking a shot at the last surviving Kennedy brother.

Note — Sen. Kennedy, perhaps sensitive over his late brother Robert's reputation for cracking the whip, cordially dislikes the title of Senate Democratic Whip that he won from Louisiana Sen. Russell Long. Kennedy is trying to persuade Senate leaders to drop the traditional whip titles and to call the two whips Assistant Majority and Minority Leaders.

Seizure of Pueblo Turned Sour for North Korea Boss

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

SEOUL, Korea (NEA) — Leading Marxist theoreticians and thought-control chieftains give a revealing look at the Pueblo incident as seen from Communist eyes.

As this psychological warfare expert sees it, North Korea's top man, Kim Il Sung, has been pushing his people at a harried pace since 1953 in war preparations, including a vast underground labyrinth of tunnels, coastal defense points, hardened factories and submarine pens and a striking air and ground force.

Kim whipped his people along by arguing the United States was planning war. But he had given people no convincing reasons to believe that war was inevitable. That is, his arguments were beginning to wear thin.

BERRY'S WORLD

Coleman Seniors Remember Friend, Take Action

EILEEN HANSEN

By JEAN F. DOLAN

KINGSTON
"We just don't want it to happen to someone else's friend."

This was the reaction of John A. Coleman High School seniors after the initial shock of Eileen Hansen's death had worn off.

Eileen, a senior at the Catholic school, died of leukemia on March 4 just four days before her 18th birthday. She had been hospitalized at Albany Medical Center since the Christmas holidays.

Her classmates some who had been with her since seventh grade at Academy of St. Ursula decided they just had to do something in her memory. They quickly hit upon the idea of a benefit with all proceeds going to cancer research and leukemia in particular.

The benefit took the form of a concert and plans began to formalize under the joint chairmanship of Michael Scherer, Julia Crespino and Donna Maurer. Soon the whole school was pitching in with work details such as poster making.

The concert will be held April 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium with the Collarmen, the swinging seminarians from Mt. St. Alphonsus providing the entertainment.

Posters are being placed in area locations and tickets will be available from class members this week. The spontaneous move for a fitting memorial is mushrooming into a positive concerted effort. Recipient of the proceeds will be St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, Memphis, Tenn. The hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas after the death of his own child from the dread blood disease.

In a letter from Danny Thomas received by the program planners, he noted that researchers at St. Jude are very close to a break through in treating leukemia. "In 1967 an improved program was developed and given to 34 children. Of these, 31 are still alive — free of all symptoms, including pain, at this time. Our cautious scientists will make no claims; but the implications of these results are happily clear."

More Than Research

He noted that St. Jude's carries out an overall research program into other blood-related diseases as well as leukemia. More than 500 patients at the hospital receive "loving and professional care," free of costs to their families.

One of the chairmen of the local benefit, Michele Scherer voiced the feelings of all the students when she said "if they are that close to a cure and we can help it come true then we have to do it, for Eileen and all the others."

It is this sort of positive devotion to purpose and overwhelming enthusiasm for a cause which takes the concert out of the realm of just another evening of good entertainment.

The latter is assured however for the Collarmen are known throughout the Mid-Hudson area for their entertaining ways.

The Collarmen

Although the personnel changes from time to time, the Collarmen's style remains a swinging thing whether they are beating out a folk or sacred message. They have thrilled adult, teen and tween audiences with equal power. Just the mention of the name is a packed house guarantee.

The group is made up of talented seminarians in residence at Mt. St. Alphonsus who wield a great guitar and sing out loud and clear. Their repertoire touches all bases of music preference.

The girl who sparked the entire undertaking was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hansen of Rhinebeck. Eileen was a student at Academy of St. Ursula from the seventh grade on and had attended John A. Coleman High School since its beginning.

Last fall she was an active member of the Spirit of 1969 Coleman yearbook business staff.

Now the Class of 1969, is well on its way to making school and community history with its humanitarian efforts. Sister Mary Gerald, principal, said it was just amazing how the idea of "we've just got to do something" mushroomed into student organized effort of such magnitude. She lauded the planners for their sincere concern and willingness to get out and make the idea work.

Coffeehouse Beneficiary Of Hobbit Day Activity

Today is officially Coffeehouse Day in the Kingston area, and Hobbit Helpers have been out since 9 this morning accepting contributions for the non-profit, community-sponsored coffeehouse—the only one in the district. At times, more than 50 young people were canvassing the business district of Kingston for contributions. Shoppers were reminded to be as generous as possible with the change to be dropped in the daily decorated coffee tins. It is hoped that contributions will not only be sufficient to allow the coffeehouse to pay the last of its debts, but also to allow the booking of some nationally-known entertainment for the coffeehouse and for concerts in the future.

The Hobbit has also been auditioning for as-yet-undiscovered local talent, and a generous response to Coffeehouse Day will allow increased payment to any local stars booked by the Coffeehouse.

Those who wish to donate to the coffeehouse, but who do not intend to be in the Kingston area today may mail their contributions to the Ulster Coffeehouse Inc., 209 Fair Street, Kingston, N. Y., 12401. All contributions are tax-exempt, since the Hobbit, or Ulster Coffeehouse, is a non-profit organization.

Because of the day-long events of Coffeehouse Day the Hobbit will not be open tonight during its regular hours. All the Hobbits also wish to take this opportunity to thank all of those who have donated earlier in the day, and also those who plan on donating later this afternoon.

The coffeehouse which first opened its doors last June now operates Friday and Saturday nights at a new location in the Fair Street Reformed Church basement. The Hobbit opens at 7:30 p. m. with shows starting at 8 o'clock. Auditions are held prior to the scheduled entertainment.

The very active youth steering committee has had a vital role in the continuing operation of the Hobbit. Teen workers have contributed to the decor with paintbrush in hand, to the treasury through many fund-raising efforts and to the entertainment through their own talent.

Today's fund collection is just one of the ways of getting means. Pacake parties, car washes and benefit shows have been employed in the past.

HOBBIT HELPERS — Teen volunteers step out on Hobbit Day to help the Ulster Coffeehouse. Among the many youth canvassers are Bridget Lang, Chris Schupp and Nick Peiffer. After a briefing meeting yesterday afternoon, workers went forth this morning and continued throughout the day to collect funds for the coffeehouse, the community-sponsored, non-profit student meeting place which operates at the Fair Street Reformed Church basement. Much of the success of the Hobbit has been realized through the efforts of the Youth Steering Committee which has worked tirelessly on fund raising projects. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Eastertime Finds Youth in News Scoring High Honors and Awards

Would you believe — it is Easter recess time already. Local high schools will be closing for the spring holiday this week and many area college students are due to arrive home soon.

From college campuses come word of Greek letter doings of two Kingstonians.

David W. Thiel, who is in his third year of electrical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was recently elected to Eta Kappa Nu, National Electrical Engineering Honor Society. David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Thiel of 645 Plainfield Street and is a 1966 graduate of Kingston High School. Students are chosen on the basis of distinguished scholarship, activities, leadership and exemplary character.

Marsha Guzewich, a student at St. Lawrence University, Canton, has been pledged to Kappa Delta Sorority. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Gunzewich of 8 Fairview Avenue.

Another Kingstonian to greet spring with flying colors is Susan B. Baxter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baxter Sr. of 4 Ponckhockie Street. A music major sophomore at Hartwick College, Susan toured with the college choir on its spring concert circuit. From March 18 to 25 the choir gave 14 choral concerts in five states and the District of Columbia.

Meanwhile back on the Kingston scene promotions came through for Robert Matheus, who has been named color guard captain in the Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Matheus of 196 First Avenue, Bob is a sophomore at Kingston High School.

He joined the corps in 1965 as a member of the banner line when the group was known as the Troop 12 Indians.

Incidentally, the Indians are now taking applications for membership in the color guard with an eye to expanding the section by eight new men. Interested teens 14 or older may join by attending a rehearsal within the next two weeks. The next practice session will be held Sunday 1:30 to 5 p.m. at Big Scot. In case of bad weather, the corps will meet at Old Dutch Church.

Two area high school girls have been singled out for honors too.

Diane Mataraza, a junior at Marlboro High School, has been selected from 18 candidates as delegate to this year's Empire Girls State at State University of New York at Albany. She will be sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of Vebey Sutton American Legion Post 124 of Marlboro.

Her future plans are to be a physical education teacher and hopes to attend either Ithaca College or Cortland.

Diane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mataraza and resides off Route 9W, Milton.

A New Paltz High School junior, Barbara Neumann, has been nominated by the English department to represent the nation-wide contest to grant public recognition to some of the best high school English students. Candidates must submit autobiographical material and creative writing samples and must take standardized tests on all aspects of writing ability.

Barbara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Neumann of 47 DuBois Road, New Paltz.

A New Paltz resident returned to home town recently as guest speaker at the high school. Hank Osterhoudt, first classman at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, addressed the junior boys regarding opportunities at West Point.

Osterhoudt is the son of Mrs. Frances Osterhoudt and is a graduate of the New Paltz Campus School.

Saugerties High School Students Have Good Things Going for Them

Saugerties scholars have a good thing going for them. Just last week 22 members were inducted into the local chapter of the National Honor Society and Dollars for Scholars applications are now available to seniors.

At the honor society ceremony juniors and seniors chosen for membership by the faculty committee on the basis of superior scholastic ability and good qualities of leadership, character and service were formally admitted.

Those taking part were Marilyn Calderwood, Nancy Christianna, Lindley Churchill, Nancy Ducas, Joseph Ellis, Steven Forma, Marie Francello, David Gallenz, Gail Gardner, Mary Lynn Garrison, Michael Graham, Thomas Jones, Janet Klom, Robert Lawless, Dan Moser, Susan Murphy, Nancy Osenni, Diane Pfeleghaar, Corinne Positano, David Snyder, Michael Staudacher, and Robert Todaro.

Officers in the Saugerties Chapter are Brenda Pavlinik, president; Sharon Johnson, vice-president; Elizabeth Graham, secretary; and Susan Petty, treasurer. James Chase is the faculty advisor.

Speaking to the new members

Charles Raible, Rotron Manufacturing Company executive, urged respect for law, order, and proper procedures for seeking change.

School Board President Arthur Simmons congratulated the new members and Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, Superintendent of Schools, commended them upon their achievement. Dr. George G. Hamaty presided.

Seniors were advised this week that Dollars for Scholars applications are now available and residents of either the Saugerties or the township of Saugerties may apply.

It is not necessary to be an

'A' student to apply. Scholarships are to be awarded on the basis of need and merit, as well as scholastic achievement.

Even though organized almost too late to have a fund raising campaign last year, 13 Saugerties area students were ranging from $100 to $300.

And for those who want to break away from the books for just a bit remember The Stain Glass Window. It is a coffee house which operates at the Saugerties Reformed Church Friday and Saturday evening from 7 to 11 o'clock for all teenagers 14 years and older.

job with them, you're liable to be passed by in favor of a more articulate (if not better-qualified) candidate.

If you go in person to apply for a job, take with you all the information you'll need to fill out an application blank. If you have a social security number, you'll have to know that, and also the names and addresses of the schools you have attended. You will probably have to give the names of previous places you have worked and the dates you worked for them, and you will need three or four references.

References should not include members of your family or personal friends. Good names to give are former employers, teachers, and those under which you performed volunteer work. Remember to ask their permission before you use their names!

When you apply in person, dress neatly and in good taste. Boys, even when they are applying for manual labor, should stay out of blue jeans, and girls should apply cosmetics and perfume lightly and make sure that they can sit in their skirt without embarrassing anyone. Go to an interview alone, not with your parents or best friend. Act poised, even if you don't feel that way—it will help you to hold your cool.

Fidgeting or chattering will just let the man know you're rattled. Answer all questions promptly and politely. If there is a skill required in the job you're applying for, such as typing or operating a lathe, be prepared to demonstrate your ability. Even if you don't get the job, leave on a friendly note; you may wish to apply at the same firm again in the future.

Be a Volunteer

If you don't really need the money, but are looking for a summer job to pass the time, consider a volunteer job in a field that interests you. The Candy Strippers, Operation Headstart, political candidates, and non-profit groups are only a few of the places where one may gain a summer of interesting experiences in return for some very hard, but fascinating, work.

And if you do need the money, but can't find a job, consider self-employment. That doesn't limit you to babysitting or lawn-mowing, you know. One girl made several hundred dollars in a summer altering dresses for her mother's friends, while a boy was very successful as a freelance photographer. If you have a special skill, put it to work for you.

Vacations are for fun, after all—and the right vacation-time job can not only be fun, but also profitable!

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Wedding Vows Exchanged

Miss Ellen Ruth Kay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kay of 265 Cooper Avenue, Oradell, N. J., was married Saturday, Mar. 22, to John William Wood, 609 Mix Avenue, Hamden, Conn., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack A. Wood, Cottekill, at Grace Lutheran Church, River Edge, N. Y.

The Rev. Paul W. Kapp pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Howard Milachewski sang traditional wedding selections. Vases of gladioli and a variety of spring flowers decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length, empire gown of sata peau over satin, featuring an attached train. The stand-up collar and waistline were trimmed with pearl beading edged in fine lace. She wore a floor length head-piece and carried a bouquet of glame-las, eucharis, lilies, roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Donald Kay, sister-in-law of the bride, Hacketts-town, N. J., was matron of honor. She wore a yellow, A-line, full length gown trimmed at the neckline and sleeve-edges with matching embroided lace. She carried a cascade of yellow and white Shasta daisies.

Attendants were Mrs. James H. Deitz, Edison, N. Y.; Miss Maureen Ennis, Oradell, N. J.; Miss Jean Power, River Edge, N.J., and Miss Karen Wolfe, Oradell, N. J., both cousins of the bride. Their gowns and bouquets were identical to that of the honor attendant.

James H. Deitz of Edison, N.J. was best man. Ushers were Elwood Osterhoudt, Poughkeepsie; Frank Stock, Orlando, Fla.; Robert Steinmetz, Valparaiso, Ind.; and George Wood, brother of the bridegroom, Cottekill.

After the wedding, a reception for 100 guests was held at Rustic Lodge, East Paterson, N.J.

The bride is a graduate of River Dell High School and will be graduated in June from Douglas College with a Bachelor of Arts degree in mathematics. She is a member of Pi Mu Epsilon, national mathematics honorary.

Her husband, an alumnus of Rondout Valley Central High School, was graduated summa cum laude from Rutgers University. He is a member of Kappa Sigma, social fraternity, and Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering society. He is an engineer with Sikorsky, Aircraft, Stratford, Conn.

The couple are on their wedding trip to the Poconos in Pennsylvania.

Bernard - Colao Engagement Told

JOCELYN BERNARD

Mrs. Renee Bernard of 184 Rue Leo Saignat, Gironde, France, announces the engagement of her daughter, Jocelyne, to Lt. Joseph A. Colao Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Colao of 142 Marius Street, Kingston. Miss Bernard is also the daughter of the late Fabius Bernard.

The prospective bride was graduated from Sacred Heart Academy of Bordeaux, France, and attended the Law University of Bordeaux. She is employed by U. S. Air Force as a secretary at Weisbaden, Germany.

Her fiancé, an alumnus of Kingston High School and Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N. J., is serving in the U. S. Air Force at Weisbaden, Germany where he has been stationed since July, 1966.

A September wedding is planned.

A home economist from a big university has studied this subject and she writes:

"Remove the light globes from your lamps when they feel sticky or tacky on top. "After the globe is cool, hold it by the metal part, pour some detergent on a sponge and use this to wipe the light bulb. Rinse carefully and wipe dry. Be sure not to wet the metal part of the globe. When thoroughly dry, replace in your lamp. "For parchment shades on lamps, we have found wall-paper cleaner excellent. "Always disconnect any lamp first when cleaning it."

Japanese Folk Music Will Be Presented April 1

The Wagner Society Male Choir of Keio University, Tokyo, Japan, will give a concert at Vassar College on Tuesday evening, April 1. The performance, in Skinner Hall at 8:30, is open to area residents.

The program will consist of Japanese folk songs, lieder by Mahler and the French composers Faure, Hahn and Saint-Saens, and works of the Japanese composer Michio Mamiya.

The group is one of 13 choruses from all over the world who are participating in the International University Choral Festival at Lincoln center for the Performing Arts in New York City. This week (March 23-30) performances are being given at Philharmonic Hall in Lincoln center. In addition, each chorus is visiting a number of universities and colleges in the United States, as well as a public school district, where they will be guests of the community.

The Keio Choir will arrive in Poughkeepsie on Monday, Mar. 31 where a number of activities have been arranged for the by Vassar. The chorus members, staying in homes in the area, will have meals in Vassar dormitories, and the students have arranged a party for them on Monday night, which will be followed by a reception at the home of Mrs. Nell Eurich, Dean of the Faculty. On Tuesday they will tour the IBM plant, the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library in Hyde Park, and after the concert there will be a reception in Main Hall at Vassar.

To Perform at KHS

Woodwind Quintet from the Juilliard School of Music will perform at Kingston High School Wednesday, Apr. 2 at 9:20 a.m. as part of the Lincoln Center Student Program.

Ike Was Active Athlete

Sports World Mourns Death of Dwight Eisenhower

TIANO'S TOPICS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

A nation mourns the passing of a beloved leader, and the world of golf will be particularly saddened by the death of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

A fine sports buff, Ike was closest to the duffers of the nation than any other group of athletes. It was because he was one of them and there are so many.

The most golf-conscious president of our times, General Eisenhower drew great joy and relaxation from his many rounds with the nation's golf elite. Two of his favorites were Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead.

It was Snead who once gave Ike some classic advice on the golf course.

In the midst of a round, the President was having some difficulty getting distance off the tees. He turned to the balding, West Virginia millionaire hillbilly and asked: "What am I doing wrong, Sam?"

"Well, Mr. President," replied The Slammer diplomatically, "I think if you put a little more fanny into your swing, you'll get more distance." Which is the case, of course, with all of us.

THE EISENHOWER COTTAGE at the Augusta National Golf Course at Augusta, Georgia, home of the Masters tournament, was something of a golf shrine.

I believe that every one of the countless thousands of visitors to the Masters insisted on being shown the Eisenhower Cottage, between the ninth and the 10th tee.

Two of my treasured memories on frequent trips to the Masters and Augusta was to see General Eisenhower and Bobby Jones in person.

It was a sad coincidence that the day before Ike died, Jones, author of the only Grand Slam in golf history, indicated he would not be able to make the trip from Atlanta to Augusta to watch this year's Masters. The 70-mile journey has become too taxing for the 67-year-old Georgia great, who has been disabled for many years.

Thus, within a period of 24 hours it has been impressed on thousands of pilgrims to the Georgia golf shrine that two of the Masters' most famous patrons will never again grace the beautiful landscape that makes up the Augusta National layout.

WILTWYCK COUNTRY CLUB has just issued its first golf calendar in a beautiful green and white color scheme.

Among the tidbits we were able to cull from the attractive brochure: Douglas R. Kennedy is president of the Board of Directors—Mrs. George Rifkenbary is chairman of the swimming pool committee. Mrs. Howard DeWitt is general chairman of the women's division. Mrs. Robert Cullum is chairman of ladies golf, with Mrs. Charles Kovacs and Mrs. Seymour Werbalowsky tournament co-chairmen. Wallace A. Pfeiffer, The men's tournament chairman is Donald DeKoskie.

In line with British and Scottish custom, Wiltwyck has created the posts of team captain for both men's and women's divisions. The honors for this season go to Mrs. Robert Merritt and Harvey Bostic.

The venerable Scotsman, Ian (Scotty) Robertson returns for another tour as club professional. Alfred Schmid stays as the impeccable Greens chairman and John H. Espey Jr. will again exert his green finger as course superintendent. For those who are always thinking about something to eat, Al Barone and his congenial staff stand ready to entice you with endless varieties and quantities of gourmet delights.

THE COMPETITIVE SPIRIT at Wiltwyck remains the strongest in the county as reflected by solid tournament calendars for both men and women's divisions.

All standard fixtures, including the prestigious Invitational, have been retained. Two new features have been added—midweek interclub duels with The Twaalfskill Club and Woodstock Country Club.

Bill Van Aken, who grew up on the old Wiltwyck 9-hole then went on to greater fame at Woodstock Country Club, has returned to Wiltwyck. This leaves all but a couple of Ulster County's big name golfers safely ensconced in the House of Champions.

Women's golf membership is no longer available to new applicants but single golf membership is to both women and men, with payment of initiation fee required.

In addition to the 20 per cent dues increase, the Wiltwyck Club has hiked the initiation fee to $200.

THE WILTWYCK MEMBERS will find a refurbished clubhouse awaiting them. The dining room has been completely redecorated, painted, papered, the floors and piano refinished and new drapes placed. The former prop shop is being converted into a men's lounge and the outside of the clubhouse will also have a facelift, the building will be painted and a new staircase installed.

The board of directors is considering the installation of a sauna room, if membership interest warrants it.

The American Academy of Artists and Illustrators is awarding honorary memberships to Interior Decorators Agnes and Dot Kennedy (piano); Mary and Ray Sawyer (drapes) and Clancy Van Aken (professional painter) for their fine work at Wiltwyck.

Gerry and Boots Overhag, authors of the breezy March Newsletter, have departed for Florida, leaving behind them Tommy Armour's stirring admonition: "It is not solely the capacity to make great shots that makes champions, but the essential quality of making very few bad shots."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sports activity across the country came to a temporary standstill today as athletes and fans paused to honor the memory of one of their own, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Eisenhower, who played football at West Point before launching his brilliant military career, then found in golf a sanctuary from the rigors of the Presidency, died Friday in Washington.

The sports world quickly joined in mourning the loss of the stellar soldier-statesman, and memorial services at far-flung sports events were planned through Monday when the state funeral is to be held in the nation's capitol.

The 24 major league baseball clubs were directed by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to conduct ceremonies at exhibition games in Florida, Arizona and California. No games will start Monday, the official day of mourning, until at least one hour after completion of the funeral services.

J. Walter Kennedy, president of the National Basketball Association, directed each of the eight teams involved in post-season playoffs to observe appropriate ceremonies before weekend games.

The American Basketball Association called off three regular season games scheduled for Monday night. The NBA playoff game between San Francisco and Los Angeles will go on as scheduled.

A tribute also was planned before the start of the Atlanta 500-mile stock car race Sunday.

A minute of silence was to be observed during the third round of the National Airlines Open golf tournament at Miami, Fla., today and Monday's scheduled qualifying play in the Greater Greensboro, N.C., Open was postponed until Tuesday in deference to the memory of the former President.

Arnold Palmer, the great golfer who met the President at Augusta, Ga., after winning the 1958 Masters and played with him several times thereafter, was particularly saddened by Ike's passing.

"He loved the game," Palmer recalled. "When he was on the course, he could shut out the cares of the world."

Bob Murphy Takes Lead In Airlines Tournament

MIAMI (UPI)—Young Bob Murphy, who jogs around the course to keep his imposing girth in check, led a field of 73 into today's third round of the $200,000 National Airlines Open.

"I started out real slow and things started popping," said the 26-year-old graduate of the University of Florida who created a sensation last year when he won $105,595 as a tour rookie.

Murphy birdied eight holes, four in succession, to offset two bogeys and give him a two round total of nine-under par 135. The 66 tied the day-old course record of 66.

Douglas Trails
Denver's Dale Douglass went into today's round one stroke back at 68-68-136 and Lionel Hebert and Butch Baird were seven-under at 137.

Winds gusting during the morning up to 35 miles an hour sent Friday's scores soaring. Among those who didn't make the 146 cutoff were Jack Nicklaus who had a 148, Tom Weiskopf, 150, and Masters champ Bob Goalby, 147.

Arnold Palmer, two-under with a 69-73-142, was on the 14th green when he heard of the death of his old friend, former President Eisenhower.

Palmer Grieves
Palmer was visibly disturbed after he got the news about his frequent golfing companion.

KBT Continues Sunday Night

The Kingston Basketball Tournament continues tomorrow night with Clarkstown Recs going against Wiley's in the 7:30 opener and Fellicello Pipers taking on Bahl's All-Stars in the second contest at 8:45.

Clarkstown and Wiley's should be an even pairing as both squads are loaded with talent. Heading the Recs will be Paul Toscano Wyoming ace, Art and Al Orlando Manhattan college standouts who are no strangers to Kingston.

Wiley's will have Marshall O'Neil from UCCC and Ed Shuster 1968 New Paltz ace. Fellicello's will be led by Jim Fraley former All-American and Rich Dyer ex-NYU ace. The Bahl All-Stars will be headed by Charlie Moore UCCC player, and Charlie Lay of Ulster Plaza Esso from the YMCA league.

Winners of the Clarkstown vs. Wiley's game will play Aero Lake Airport and the winner of the Fellicello vs. Bahl's contest will go against tournament favored DeMico Motors in the Semi-Finals on April 11th.

Alcindor Set to Sign With Milwaukee Bucks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Lew Alcindor has decided to join the National Basketball Association, and that decision might well bring an end to the rival American Basketball Association.

The 7-foot-1 1/2 inch center from UCLA made it publicly known Friday that he would sign with the Milwaukee Bucks of the NBA instead of the New York Nets of the ABA, thus ending speculation as to where the three-time All-American would play his pro ball.

ABA Files Suit

Alcindor's decision, which he made last Wednesday, so irked the ABA that it filed a multi-million dollar antitrust suit against the NBA Friday on charges the NBA was monopolizing pro basketball.

Alcindor, who just six days ago led UCLA to an unprecedented third consecutive NCAA title, said the solid organization of the NBA and a sounder financial arrangement were the two major reasons affecting his decision.

"With all things being equal, it would have been easier playing in New York," said Alcindor. "It would have been different if the ABA had a better offer, but things not being the same, I went to the NBA."

"The challenge in the NBA is greater," Alcindor admitted. "The quality of the NBA can be measured in terms of organization, and in its established record of sound organization. That is not the case of the ABA."

Verbal Agreement

Alcindor, who is being handled in his negotiations by construction magnate Sam Gilbert and attorney Ralph Shapiro of Beverly Hills, Calif., has not officially signed a contract with the Bucks, but his verbal agreement with the team calls for a five-year contract of $1 million, including bonus, salary, side benefits and annuities.

It came as somewhat of a surprise that the NBA had topped the ABA, financial offer for the giant center. The ABA had originally stated it would pool its resources and offer a $1 million contract to land Alcindor.

The league obviously felt Alcindor was vital to its future, and now that he has turned it down the ABA appears to be in jeopardy. Many franchises are failing financially, and there are few big name stars to bring the people out.

The ABA is claiming in its suit that the NBA is trying to drive it out of business by "disparaging" it to coaches and players, warning NBA players of blacklisting if they associate with the ABA, paying college players under the table not to sign with the ABA and seeking to induce ABA players to break their contracts.

Celtics, San Francisco Take Edge In NBA Play

(By United Press International)

The Boston Celtics and the San Francisco Warriors, the supposed have-nots of the National Basketball Association playoffs, were fat cats today, each holding 2-0 leads in their best-of-seven series against the Philadelphia 76ers and the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Celtics, lagging fourth place finisher in the eastern division, ripped the second place 76ers to pieces, 134-103 Friday night, making their 14-point victory margin of Wednesday night look puny.

Delirious Boston fans acclaimed Larry Siegfried as their man of the hour, after Larry sparked a decisive 37-point third quarter scoring spree while filling in for the veteran Sam Jones, who had been ejected after only 3:37 of the first quarter. Siegfried tossed in 15 of his 20 points during the third period. The Celtics had trailed 29-27 at the end of one, led by 55-54 at the half.

For the Lakers, the 107-101 loss to San Francisco was a nightmare. Wilt Chamberlain, who had scored only 11 points in the first playoff loss, could get only 10 Friday as the Warriors clogged the middle and forced Los Angeles to shoot from far outside.

Nate Thurmond scored 27 points for the Warriors and dominated the boards by coming down with 28 rebounds and blocking a dozen shots. A pair of Laker castoffs, Rudy Larusso and Jim King, teamed with Thurmond to put the Lakers in deep trouble. Larusso (Jack) Madden. I know Sam had 29 points and played doesn't swear. I've never seen him get thrown out of a game. I'm not going to say a word about the officiating. I've already spent my $250 this year talking about refs."

And why shouldn't Russell keep quiet? With a 2-0 lead, his Celtics have turned the eastern playoffs their way, just as the inspired Warriors of San Francisco seem to have done in the west.

The Warriors will be back at home Sunday night against Boston. The Warriors are hosts Monday to the Lakers in third game action.

The Baltimore Bullets invade Madison Square Garden this afternoon in their second game against the New York Knicks, who whipped them Thursday, and Atlanta, seeking to up its margin to 2-0, is at home to San Diego.

Montreal Scores, 8-0, Blasts Detroit Tigers

(By United Press International)
Billy Stoneman, Skip Guinn and Carroll Sembera.

The only encouraging note for the Tigers was that Joe Sparma, who spent much of last season in Smith's doghouse, went the first six innings and allowed only one run. But the Expos jumped on John Hiller for seven runs in the eighth inning, including two-run singles by Jose Laboy and John Boccabella.

In the other games Friday, Minnesota nipped Los Angeles 6-5, Houston beat the Mets 5-4, Atlanta drubbed Washington 9-4, Kansas City nipped Pittsburgh 2-1, the White Sox outslugged the Red Sox 10-8, the Cubs topped San Francisco 9-4, Cleveland routed Oakland 12-2, California drubbed San Diego 8-1, Philadelphia beat Cincinnati 9-2, Seattle nipped the California B team 4-3 and Baltimore nipped the Yankees 3-1.

K'ngston Wins Small Fry Tilt

HUDSON, N.Y. (AP)—Kingston topped Hudson No. 1 and Hudson No. 2 won by forfeit in the first round of the Moose Small Fry Basketball Tourney here Friday.

Eighteen teams from across the state are participating in the tourney. Kingston topped Hudson 1, 44-29 and Hudson 2 won by forfeit against Poughkeepsie which had four players out sick.

The second round and quarterfinals were scheduled for today and the semi-final and final round will be played Sunday.

Last year the tourney was held in Niagara Falls with Elmira winning over Hudson.

Liston Wins Bout

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Former heavyweight champion Sonny Liston hammered out a unanimous 10-round decision Friday night over Billy Joiner of Cincinnati, who only went seven rounds the last time the two fought on the West Coast.

Man and Nature Must Share the Blame

Deer Starvation Worst Since '62

By MORT LAFFIN

NEW PALTZ While the condition of the deer herd in Ulster County isn't in as bad shape as in other counties in the Region Eight district, it is by no means good. Ulster was not hit by starvation as hard as some of its neighbors, but, according to Joseph Stealy, Acting Regional Game Manager for all of Region Eight, this will be the worst winter for deer since 1961-62.

Some of the upper sections of the county, near the Delaware line, have the heaviest losses attributed to starvation in the area. Fur Brook and Clearville have been the hardest hit. Dogs, traveling in packs and running down the weakened deer, have also proved to be a big problem. The Shandaken area has also reported cases of starving.

The biggest, most obvious, cause of the starvation problem is the fact that there are just too many deer and not enough accessible grazing areas to support the large herds. Stealy pointed out that there are many factors that have led to this condition. He said that there are approximately 250,000 acres of State Forest Preserve, 178,000 in Ulster, that are inaccessible to hunters because the land is bordered by private, posted property.

"Another factor," he said, "is that conservationists can't go into the area because of the existing 'Forever Wild Law', protecting the woodlands from man's interference. The deer are concentrating in the feeding areas and we can't help them because of this law."

Another problem seems to lie at the feet of the private land clubs. Much has been said concerning the fact as to whether or not these clubs are discharging their responsibility, not only to the members of these clubs, but also to the herd itself. This particular problem has become very sticky and quite controversial and I don't think it is fair to generalize too much, making all the clubs look bad. Nor is it possible, at least not now, to single out individual groups for public admonishment.

Special

Some people feel that clubs should allow their members to hunt antlerless deer and should not place so many restrictions on its membership.

Without getting too emotionally involved, I feel that the law-making bodies in these clubs, should take a long, hard look at their own regulations and try to honestly answer the question as to whether or not they are helping or hindering the herds that give them their sport and meat for the table.

If they find that they are inadvertently hindering the proper harvest of deer, I say inadvertently because no human being would intentionally remain blind to the situation, maybe they can make some helpful changes or suggestions.

The lack of an effective dog quarantine is also causing wanton destruction of deer. Stealy said that he felt that it is the responsibility of the dog owners themselves to keep their animals in check and prevent them from roaming in killer packs.

The end result of this problem is, for the want of a better word, appalling. Figures released by the State Conservation Department at New Paltz, show that 92,000 deer, possibly more, will perish in New York State, due to starvation, this year. More important is the fact that the quality of the deer in this area, will suffer greatly.

Reproduction rates will decrease and smaller deer will be the result of this. Ulster County itself, will not be as hard hit as other counties in this respect. But Stealy points out that deer in this area weigh an average of 20 pounds less and have smaller "racks" than deer in other sections of the state, particularly in the western part.

Qualified men are working very hard to rectify this problem. However, their hands are tied by laws that have been out dated by the situation now present. To simply say that the State go out and feed the deer is not enough and is impractical, in some cases, impossible.

The responsibility lies in the hands of the people, as it always has, to do something about this most serious problem. I don't think that I have to tell anyone what has to be done, or how to go about it.

Three All Stars For Aero Lake

Aero Lake Airport placed three men on the first team all star selections as announced by the YMCA 1968-69 Basketball League officials.

Leon Hanna who led the Lakers in the rebounding and was magnificent on defense all year was not only given a first team berth but also won the Most Valuable Player selection. Hanna scored 19.4 points per game.

Along with Hanna, teammates Ron Thomas and Mel Williams received first place births. Thomas also good on defense scored 17.2 points per game. Williams averaged 15.9 points per game and was the spark plug, playmaker of the Airport team.

Jumpin Joe Uhl received a position on the team and led the league in scoring with 30.7 points per game. Bill Boines who had the high individual game of 48 points this year along with being an outstanding rebounder was given the other spot.

Selections for the teams were based on players who played at least half the season's games.

First Team
Joe Uhl, Premier; Bill Boines, Ulster; Leon Hanna, Aero Lake; Ron Thomas, Aero Lake; Mel Williams, Aero Lake.

Second Team
Charlie Lay, Ulster; Dave Meeks, Paton's; Harry Pratt, Premier; Len Beck, Aero Lake; Tom Fiore, Aero Lake. *Most Valuable Player.

Nine Lettermen Lift RVC Hopes

By MORT LAFFIN

Stone Ridge, N.Y. — Nine returning lettermen, five of them starters, will comprise the hub of the Rondout Valley High School baseball team this year. Gander coach Hal Ross feels that these boys must come through if his team is to have a chance.

"I will make no predictions as to how we will actually fare in the Ulster County Athletic League race (UCAL)," the coach said. "Every year the race is close. The rest of us end up chasing Highland or Marlboro. But, I won't count us out. If we find some hitters, our opponents will know we're around."

Tom Williams, pitcher-infielder and catcher Tom Frazier lead the returnees and will be co-captains of the Gander nine. Other returning players include Mark Fisher, Keith Gorham, John Carle, Jay Spiegel, David Sims, George Wallace and John Dunkin.

Moving up from the junior varsity will be Bill Parete, Mike Diccia, Mike Krom, Steve Chatham, Ed Googan, James DeWitt, Paul Perez and John LeVandy.

Coach Ross said that if Williams and Frazier can come through as expected and get some support from the rest of the squad, his team has a fighting chance.

POUGHKEEPSIE Green Haven Prison at Stormville in Dutchess county.

Harold W. Follette, a Kingston native and warden of Green Haven Prison, is president for the 1969 season.

Other officers are: Jim Brown, Beacon, vice president; Ken Van Sciver, Middletown, secretary-treasurer; and Bill McKibbin, Beacon, the American Softball Association league commissioner.

All Dutchess valley teams interested in obtaining a league franchise have been invited to the April 13 meeting.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Sam Bell, track and field coach at the University of California, was named to a similar position at Indiana University Friday, succeeding Jim Lavery.

Lavery resigned to accept a position as associate director of Ohio University's School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

The league will open its 1969 season with a doubleheader on May 4 between Dino's of Middletown and Gallagher's at Edward Fay Memorial Field in

Sport Club May Advance to Top League

By MORGAN HILL

Kingston Sport Club Kickers may get a promotion to the highest league in the German-American Soccer Association, if present plans to restructure the league for 1969-70 materialize.

That's the word from Bill Oehler, the Kickers' representative to G-A meetings, who returned from New York this week with details of the plan.

The proposal projects three leagues of 12 teams each. At the present time, the Premier and League Division each has 12 teams and the top Major League has 10.

If proposed plans are adopted, the two top teams in the Premier circuit would advance to the Major and two from the League Division to the Premier.

Two new teams would be added from a large list of applicants now on file with league headquarters.

The re-alignment would necessitate shifting of teams between the Premier and League Division and this would be accomplished by means of playoffs, Oehler said.

Have Two Goals

The restructuring of the league is designed to accomplish two things: reduce the present schedule from 22 to 16 games and solve the acute problem of obtaining playing fields.

At present, teams in the League Division and Premier circuit play home and home series for a total of 22 games.

Under the new setup, the three leagues would be divided into two six-team divisions to be called North and South. Each team would play a round robin in its own division and meet the teams in the other division once each for a total of 16 games.

"The league directors feel the season is dragging too long and inter-division competition will spur more interest," Oehler said. "Then, of course, there has always been the problem of getting fields in the New York City area. When postponements start piling up it becomes a mess."

Team Is Confident

Oehler and Sport Club officials are enthusiastic about the promotion to the crack Major League for next season.

"I see no reason why we can't make it," said Oehler. "We're leading the Premier by three points now and the worst we should get is a second place finish which would insure us automatic advancement to the big league."

The Kickers, with 21 points, lead runner-up Newark Sport Club three points, with Hoboken and Hungaria four and five points away.

Kickers will be idle the next two weekends but have a gala scheduled on Saturday, April 5, when a special workout is scheduled at 2:30 p.m., followed by skull session in the evening.

To Show Soccer Film
At 9 p.m., there will be showing of the highly acclaimed soccer film, "Goal." The color film deals with the last World Cup championship games held in Wembley Stadium, England.

The documentary shows the 16 finalists arriving from all over the world, culminating with the championship game between England and West Germany. The much debated goal by England is shown in slow motion and will be of great interest to all soccer buffs.

Oehler says the film showing is open to the public at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

Raceway Inks $80,000 Pace Series in August

By MORT LAFFIN

MONTICELLO Phil Tully has carded three legs and a final for this month long series and has a premier condition reading non-winners of $40,000 in 1968. Additionally, the pacers three years old and over must have started eight or more times in the United States or Each of the three legs carries $8,000 guaranteed purses.

Should there be more than one division for each leg, all additional divisions will also boast $8,000 guaranteed purses.

The final is $10,000 added and Tully hopes it will round off at approximately $20,000. The final is set for August 30 while the three legs are inked on August 9, 16 and 23.

A nomination fee of $250 makes all entries eligible to all three legs. There are no additional payments. The leading money winners in the series with at least two starts out of the three legs, limited to two entries from one interest and with separate wagering interests, will be eligible to the final.

All legs are at the distance of one mile with purses split in the conventional 50 per cent for first, 25 per cent for second, 12 per cent for third, 8 per cent for fourth and 5 per cent for fifth. If a sufficient number of entries are available, separate divisions for fillies and mares will be used in the first three legs.

In the event of more than one division, starters in the divisions will be drawn by lot and stable entries seeded. The series closes on May 15 and materialized at the Mighty M's as the result of cancelling last year's MYR Pacing Series. This event was contested at Monticello, Roosevelt and Yonkers.

The Mighty M hosted two legs of the MYR last year and went in two divisions both times. Outstanding racing and fast miles were the order then with C.K. Adios and Frank T. Ace connecting in track record breaking performances of 2:00 and 2:00 4/5 respectively. The other two events fell to Pocono Hanover in 2:00 3/5 and Rivaltone in 2:01 4/5.

The same caliber of horses will be eligible to the Mid Summer Championships under the money condition. Among them are such crack sidewheelers as Nifty Nelse, Jim Harrison, Hope Time, Piping-hot Pick, Adelbert Hanover, Pocono Hanover, Nemma Hanover, Ember Hanover, Bonne Fille, Bergan Hanover, Berra Hanover and Escapade Lobell.

Also Fashion Tip, Shore Will, Silent Byrd, Castle Knight, Shilaway Lad, Marty Dares, Miss Conna Adios, H.A. Meadowland, Super Waver, Lenawee Creed, Beau Butler, Easy Prom, OsoSlo, Score Time, Bye Bye Pat, Santa's Fury, Pocomoonshine Nevele Holiday, Peerswick and Orbitel.

Countless other class smblers, of course, also fit the conditions, promising to make the series one of the best ever assembled.

ATLANTA (UPI) — Bud Erickson resigned as assistant to the president of the Atlanta Falcons Friday, saving he hadn't had the opportunity to help the National Football League club as much as he hoped.

Erickson, who said he left on good terms with team president Rankin Smith, added that he hated to leave when the Falcons seemed to be making progress.

The 'Evil' Soap Opera Star

NEW YORK (AP) — Several million housewives think Andrea Whiting is the wickedest woman in televisionland. Joan Copeland just feels sorry for her.

Miss Copeland knows Andrea better than anyone else. She has been playing the part for about a year in "Search for Tomorrow," one of CBS' most popular afternoon soap operas.

"Andrea tried to kill her estranged husband for months and he's still alive," the actress said with a smile. "I guess you might call her a failure."

Andrea first tried to run him down with her car—and hit the wrong person. Then she got a gun but her son found it before she could use it. Finally she stole poor Sam's medicine and turned it into a lethal potion. But somehow she, not Sam, took it by mistake and she now is emerging from a brush with death—after all, no serial writer is going to kill off a popular figure.

Some Repercussions

Evil Andrea, however, has caused some repercussions in the off-camera life of Miss Copeland, who is happily married to an engineer and has a 17-year-old son. On a recent day she stopped at a drugstore counter for a quick sandwich. On the next stool was a substantial suburban lady shopper who looked her over very carefully.

Then the shopper leaned over and hissed a nasty word.

Miss Copeland is getting accustomed to being glared at in buses and sniffed at by female passengers in subways. She knows that the show's producers withhold most of the hate mail Andrea receives, but Joan did receive a letter signed "The Viewers."

"You'd better stop this," she was told. "We are writing your husband Sam and his friends so that they know what you are doing."

She receives a lot of earnest mail pleading with her to give Sam a divorce and to reform.

Andrea is not only a frustrated murderess but she is a solitary drinker and the only member of the cast allowed to smoke cigarettes.

But Miss Copeland, veteran of five Broadway shows and an early member of the Actors' Studio, insists that Andrea is just misguided.

"If an actress tried to play her as evil for evil's sake, it would just be melodrama," she explained. "I want her to be believable, and I'm convinced that she is just trying to save herself and doesn't think about hurting others."

Stumbles Into Acting

Miss Copeland was a pianist who stumbled into acting. A choral group with a radio hour became bored and decided to do some plays instead. She asked a playwright brother for some material. He sent it, they played it and her next stop was the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York.

The playwright brother? His name is Arthur Miller who among other accomplishments wrote "Death of a Salesman."

Copeland is a stage name.

City Beat

Election Forecast: Dem Dynasty to Continue

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

PHASE ONE of Campaign '69 is over and by all accounts, the Republican party is dead. Only a major miracle can prevent the Democrats from taking the three top offices and (as we see it) at least 10 of 13 Common Council seats.

Let's take it from the top. It looks like Frank Koenig against Jim Tyrrell. That's assuming the hard-hitting Tyrrell doesn't strike out in a primary against John Mayone or whomever else the Republicans decide to split their party with.

Tyrrell's stock in trade is loud, sharp criticism, but it takes two to make a fight. Koenig is too much the political pro to wage a fight on his opponent's terms.

The new Tyrrell is very much the gentleman, the man of calm reason. He no longer attacks. That was all an act, he says, to bolster the audience on his radio talk show. We'll submit that Mr. Tyrrell deserves an academy award for best performance by an actor in a dramatic series.

Koenig has several things going for him including his record and Garraghan's, both of which he can pick and choose from to his advantage. He is also a hometown boy, which may be his biggest advantage over the Republican from Poughkeepsie. The word carpetbagger may be thrown around during this campaign as witnessed by Garraghan's reference to Tyrrell's license plates on Wednesday night. We're surprised that Tyrrell, a stickler for details, didn't bother to have his plates changed. He had to reregister the car in December.

THE NUMBER TWO SLOT will pit Burton Davis against Bob Gallo. Gallo has led a charmed life, politically, and we see no reason for his luck to change at this stage.

He got into politics with Koenig about six years ago and took over Frank's old ward, the Ninth. His first election was no sweat and he ran easily as an incumbent, in the Ninth, the second time. Then along came Garraghan, who wasn't exactly wild about Bobby but agreed to take him on the ticket. Bob faced the late Lou Smith in that 1967 run for alderman-at-large and came in with about 800 votes over the inexperienced Republican.

Bob almost had to win one by himself this year, but up popped Koenig. Looks like another breeze.

Burton Davis is admired in Republican circles but his track record leaves a lot to be desired. As one Demo put it, "he couldn't even win a Republican primary in his own ward and he was the party nominee." It looks like curtains for Burton.

THERE ISN'T too much we can say about the race for city judge, since there is only one candidate, to date, Hubert Richter, the incumbent. Incumbent judges are particularly hard to unseat due to a code of ethics that virtually forbids public criticism. Richter won big the last time. There's little reason why he can't repeat.

AS FAR AS THE Common Council goes, we expect that the Democrats will use their 12 incumbents to good advantage. No 12 angry men here. The Council will cool it until after the elections unless Garraghan figures some way to shake them up.

We figure the Republicans have a shot in three wards, the Second, the Fourth and the 13th.

John Machione will be going in the Second on the Republican ticket and despite what the Demos may claim, he's no pushover. However, the Demos will make a major push to knock him off with Dan Cronan, a new man in politics. The Democrats have the advantage of having so many "safe" seats that they can concentrate on one area, such as the Second Ward, for an all-out drive. Machione will probably win, but he'll know he's been in a battle.

THE FOURTH WARD features two old antagonists, Pete Fisher and Flo Ludlow. Mrs. Ludlow won a squeaker from Pete the last time out, thanks, in part, to the Conservatives running their own man.

Down in the 13th, Bernie Sims is giving it one more shot after a great deal of soul-searching. Jim Madden had better pay attention in this race. Only a last ditch blitz by Bob Gallo, Dee Cole and a host of others saved him last year. Once again, the Conservative vote was decisive.

The Democrats have apparently had better luck with the Conservatives than the Republicans did. It looks like the Conservatives will either back key Democratic candidates or run their own complete slate. Either way, it hurts the Republicans.

AS FAR AS the Legislative ticket, the Demos have offered a mixture of new faces (Jim Gilpatric and Abel Garraghan) and old faces (Buddy Lyle and Doc Gorman, Orrie Riehl and Bill Edelmuth). Andy Gilday and Pucker Davis round out the ticket. Still, the legislature is one of the soft spots the Demos will have to concentrate on. A 4-4 split seems likely in the city.

As for the Republicans, these are indeed dim, dark days. Anyone who attended the respective party conventions can attest to that. The difference was like day and night.

Perhaps a wide open primary may shock the Republicans into working together. No one profits under a one party system.

Battle of Budget Ends; Sales Tax Rise Tuesday

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — The legislature had only the finishing touches to apply today to complete adoption of the $6.4-billion state budget, after voting a one-cent increase in the sales tax.

For all practical purposes, the annual battle of the budget ended Friday night when the legislature's Republican majority forced approval of the tax bill over bitter Democratic protests.

The measure was passed first by the Senate, on a 33-24 party line vote, then approved by the Assembly 78-70, with two Democrats and two Republicans breaking ranks to vote with their political rivals.

A spokesman for Gov. Rockefeller, who had sought the tax increase to help balance his record spending plan, said the governor could be expected to sign the measure today.

To Three Cents
It will boost the state's levy from two to three cents on the dollar, effective Tuesday. The tax applies to purchases of consumer goods, hotel and motel bills and such services as repairs of automobiles and appliances. Food, rent and medical supplies and services are exempt.

Because local communities may impose an additional tax of up to three per cent—and most, including New York City, now do so—the maximum sales tax rate in the state will be raised from five to six per cent.

During the prolonged debate, Democrats in both houses protested that this was too great an imposition on New York families of modest means. But Republicans contended there was no other practical way of financing the services embodied in Rockefeller's budget.

Rockefeller was counting on $340 million from the additional levy to strike the state budget balance required by law.

After approving the tax, the legislature addressed itself to the six other bills comprising the budget plan for the state fiscal year beginning April 1.

Rockefeller's program had been modified to provide more state aid for the schools than he had recommended and to restrict the scope of the state's increasingly expensive welfare program.

During a session that ran a half hour beyond midnight, the lawmakers approved the "state purposes" portion of the budget—the bill that provides funds to run the government itself. The votes ran along party lines in both houses.

Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea Jr. and Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges then recessed their houses until today, to address themselves to completing action on the budget.

They were assured of more than enough votes to work on the remaining measures, including the welfare changes and the state-aid and capital construction segments of the budget.

Their plan was to recess the legislature after today's effort, in observance of the East-Passover holiday period, and to return April 14 to resume the drive for final adjournment of the 1969 session.

The sales-tax increase and the "state purposes" budget bill were approved during a working session that ran nearly 7½ hours, interrupted only by a brief Senate recess for dinner.

United Front Cracks

The Democratic minorities had promised solid opposition to the sales-tax measure, but the united front cracked a bit in the Assembly.

At mid-day, word circulated through the Capitol that two up-state Democrats, Assemblymen Charles F. Stockmeister of Rochester and Albert H. Hausbeck of Buffalo, would vote with the GOP.

Duryea was short of the 76 votes he needed at the time to pass the measure in his house, because of stubborn holdouts in Republican ranks, and it was thought that the Stockmeister and Hausbeck votes would prove to be the decisive ones.

But, when the roll was called, it turned out that Duryea had the two Democrats turned out to be surplus.

The GOP holdouts were John T. Gallagher of Queens and John H. Terry of Syracuse, a member of the Syracuse-area delegation that once had threatened to block action on the budget unless the leaders effected economies large enough to forestall the sales tax boost.

Assembly Minority Leader Stanley Steingut was obviously angered by the defections in his ranks. When newsmen asked whether he knew anything about promises being made in return for Democratic votes, he replied, "I've heard lots of rumors."

There were reports that GOP leaders had promised a patronage appointment and favorable treatment of a pet bill.

Syracuse's two Republican senators, John H. Hughes and Tarky Lombardi Jr., also had threatened to oppose sales tax, but they fell into line before the vote was taken.

During the Senate debate, Democratic Minority Leader Joseph Zaretzki, who voted for the original sales tax in 1965, called it an "invidious" tax and declared, "I'm sorry I ever had anything to do with it."

Brydges accused the Democrats of pursuing "a diabolical policy of opposition" to all major legislation in an effort to make political points and recapture control of the state administration in next year's election.

Pleds Dems' Case

In the Assembly, Steingut pleaded the Democrats' case for alternative revenue measures—increased taxes on business corporation and high-income taxpayers. He called the sales tax, which he also had supported four years before, a "sordid and retrogressive" device.

Assembly Majority Leader John E. Kingston argued that the Democrats' approach would destroy the state's ability to compete for tax-producing industry and executive talent. The sales tax increase would prove least harmful to the economy, he contended.

6 Nabbed in Area Drug Raids

By WALTER S. CLARK

NEW PALTZ
State police struck simultaneously Friday in raids at an apartment here and another in Rosendale, and apprehended four college students on felony charges of criminal possession of dangerous drugs, second degree.

Two other persons, including a 16-year-old hitchhiker, were taken into custody by Woodstock police and state troopers, on charges of criminal possession of dangerous drugs—fourth degree—marijuana.

The state police raiding parties involved in the New Paltz and Rosendale arrests, confiscated 110 decks of heroin worth $770 (uncut) and two ounces of marijuana along with an unusual assortment of instruments used for administering the drugs.

The raids yesterday were conducted under direction of BCI Capt. P. G. Emden, who is in charge of Troop F narcotics division stationed at Middletown headquarters, Lt. A. J. Vainauskas and Senior BCI Investigator Edward Shannon of the Kingston Zone Headquarters.

Apartment Raid
At 10:30 a. m. Vainauskas and Shannon closed in on an apartment at 266 Main Street in this village, and arrested Melvin Allan Eiden, 19, a student at the State University College; James Andrew Matthews, 24-year-old college senior, and Eugene Joseph Martin III, 21, also a senior at the college here.

At the same hour BCI Investigators Jerry Zappolo, W. E. Wiedemann and Joseph Ventriglia of the Kingston headquarters raided the apartment of Roland Lee Eisenberg, 20, a college junior, who resides at 74 Main Street, Rosendale.

The arrests were made after search warrants had been obtained by state police from Ulster Town Justice Arthur A. Reilly, before whom the four students were arraigned yesterday afternoon on the felony drug counts.

Eisenberg and Eiden were ordered committed to the Ulster County jail in lieu of $5,000 bail each. Judge Reilly released Martin and Matthews after they posted $500 bail each. Hearings were adjourned until a later date.

According to Zappolo of the State Police Narcotics Unit, authorities seized 75 decks of heroin, milk sugar and apparatus used for administering heroin, and two ounces of marijuana and pipes and other articles used for smoking marijuana.

Thirty-five decks of heroin, hypodermic needles, syringes and pipes for marijuana along with other items in the Main Street apartment were seized during the raid.

Authorities said the heroin and marijuana came from sources in the New York City area.

Woodstock Arrests
Woodstock police and state troopers teamed up Friday night and arrested David Lloyd Walkie, 38, of 329 East 12th Street, New York City, on a charge of criminal possession of a dangerous drug, fourth degree.

He was taken into custody at 9:30 p. m. by Chief Constable William Waterous and Trooper Carl Van Wageningen, in the hamlet of Woodstock.

Arraigned before Town Justice Rudolf Baumgarten, Walkie was committed to the county jail in lieu of $500. Authorities said the defendant was in possession of a quantity of marijuana and LSD when apprehended.

Later last night, Patrolmen Charles Wolven and Warren C. Graver of the Woodstock constabulary, spotted a hitchhiker in the community, later identified as Anthony Michael Celli, 16, of 78 Montgomery Street, Saugerties.

The youth was charged with criminal possession of dangerous drugs in the fourth degree, a misdemeanor. Police said Celli had in his possession a quantity of marijuana.

After a plea of innocent was entered, Judge Baumgarten committed the accused teenager to the county jail in lieu of $250 bail pending a preliminary examination at a later date.

From Hue, UPI correspondent David Lamb reported the recovery of 67 bodies of civilians executed with their hands bound behind them during the Communist Tet offensive of 1968. The mass grave 10 miles east of Hue was turned up Friday.

"More than 1,000 civilians were never accounted for after the battle of Hue. This grave may explain why," Col. Le Van Pham, the province chief, told Lamb. Relatives of persons missing since the battle showed up by the hundreds with shovels and plastic body bags.

Taconic Arrests, Drugs, License

CLINTON CORNERS
A 24-year-old Brooklyn woman was arrested early Saturday by Rhinebeck state police on the Taconic State Parkway near here and charged with possessing narcotic drugs—barbiturates, a misdemeanor.

Carol Ann Hill was arraigned before Clinton Town Justice William Tompkins and pleaded innocent. She posted a $50 bond pending hearing on April 12.

Troopers K. J. Kreminick and K. C. McCauliff stopped a car on the parkway at 2:30 a. m. for a routine check. They later booked the driver, Michael P. Martial Law Decree Eased In Pakistan KARACHI (UPI)—Gen. Yahya Khan eased his tough martial law decree today for street parades marking the Muslim holiday of Muharram, in memory of a 14th century martyr.

Moslems in every major Pakistani city took to the streets behind traditional battle shields in mourning for Hazrat Imam, who is said to have died on the battlefield in Arabia 600 years ago defending truth and justice.

The celebration is the highlight of the first 10 days of the Muslim year. Pakistan's new ruler, Gen. Khan, ordered permits issued for the religious parades—the first permission his tough regime has given for public gatherings under martial law.

A Spark That Ignites

Art is important to your child, important in our society, and essential in the school program. This year, Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, recognizing the growth of interest and achievement in the arts among young people, designated March 1969 as Youth Art Month.

Serving as chairman of Youth Art Month for the state is a Dutchess County art educator, Anthony J. Caccamo, director of art education for Wappingers Central School District. Caccamo told Tempo he feels art can "excite the minds and imaginations of youth," and that art is one of "the very few creative thinking courses offered in public schools."

The Dutchess educator has spent the month encouraging art teachers to promote Youth Art Month by arranging exhibits, talks, forums and discussions, and publicizing these activities. And Tempo can vouch for the fact that art has been given its due this month in at least two Ulster County communities. Through the efforts of Mrs. Gladys B. Plate, Onteora Schools art teacher at Woodstock and Phoenicia, and Joseph Barr, student teacher from the State University of New York art department at New Paltz, art seems to be everywhere in Woodstock and Phoenicia these days.

Work done by youngsters in art classes in both schools are on exhibit in many store windows in the two towns. Visually delightful, the drawings prove in themselves that art brings a third dimension to the educational program of a school: the personal dimension of feeling, sensitivity, empathy, and expression. It is obvious the students have become involved in perceiving the world they live in and have reacted to the things they see and feel by interpreting their emotions and insights.

THE LITTLE GIRL engrossed in her drawing is probably not aware of the fact that her very involvement is a contribution to Youth Art Month. But art educators across New York State have been working throughout March to conserve, enrich and extend art programs, knowing full well that art can provide the spark that will ignite, and can be a motivating force for youth. GRASMERE is approached through a winding avenue of stately locusts, planted by Janet Montgomery in memory of her husband and the men who fell with him during the Battle of Quebec in 1775. This drawing, looking from the main gates on Mill Road, is by artist John Peisley.

The Final Ball for Grasmere

"Grasmere," the magnificent Rhinebeck estate with its brick and marble mansion and 40 acres of parkland through which wild deer roam will host its last great ball this spring. To benefit the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre, Grasmere's doors will be thrown open to the public for all the spectacle a masked ball can bring. And since the superb mansion, long acknowledged as one of the handsomest ever built in the Hudson Valley, will shortly change hands, the May 10 Repertory Ball may afford area residents their last opportunity to see the historic "mystery house."

Mysterious because it had its beginnings in a tragic love story. Mysterious because it is approached by a majestic avenue lined by tall locust trees that are haunted by the ghosts of Revolutionary War dead. And because its verdant garden of ponds and pathways is surrounded by a high brick and marble ballustrade, punctuated at intervals by iron grilles through which the inquisitive passerby catches but an occasional glimpse of the beauty beyond.

Grasmere boasts more history than a dozen other historic old houses combined. It was only a dream in 1773 when Colonel Henry Beekman gave his granddaughter, Janet Livingston Montgomery, some 800 acres of land on the south side of Rhinebeck village. She and her husband, Richard Montgomery, talked of the house they would soon build on the property, but the Revolutionary War brought a halt to their plans. George Washington wanted Richard Montgomery as a Brigadier General in the newly formed continental army, and Montgomery left his wife behind in Rhinebeck to fight against the King. Killed in the battle of Quebec in 1775, he became one of the greatest heroes of that war.

Grieving and greying before her time, his widow moved into the lonely house she had hoped to share with Richard—and planted the now legendary Avenue of Locusts on its grounds in memory of her husband and the gallant men who died with him.

Today, a new Grasmere stands on the original foundations of the first mansion, destroyed by fire in 1842. And on May 10, its present owner, Louise Clews, the former eleventh Duchess of Argyll, will once again allow the charm and beauty of Grasmere to be seen and appreciated. For those who are historically minded, who believe supporting theatre is for all of us, and who enjoy dancing an entertainment in stately surroundings, the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre Ball at Grasmere will be the place to be on the evening of May 10.

La Mancha!

There has been more hat tossing for "The Man of La Mancha" than takes place at a West Point graduation. The musical, still a smash hit in its fourth year on Broadway, is sending a twin company on a national tour, one of whose stops will be at Kingston's Community Theatre on April 14. Curtain for the Monday evening performances is set for 8:30 p. m.

When it arrives in Kingston, the starring roles will be in the capable hands of David Atkinson and Patricia Marand. The gifted pair, who play the roles of Don Quixote and Aldonza, appeared in the Broadway production for a year and a half before taking to the road. Next fall they will return to their places in the Broadway company again, to repeat for the thousandth time the famous characters Cervantes created, the man of dreams and the trollop he images to be a lady.

An unusual part of the evening will be the musical's full orchestra in full view of the audience. In creating their artistic, and financial success, the author and director elected to have their men of melody orchestrate and play as part of the overall proceedings, onstage and just out of reach of the play's action scenes.

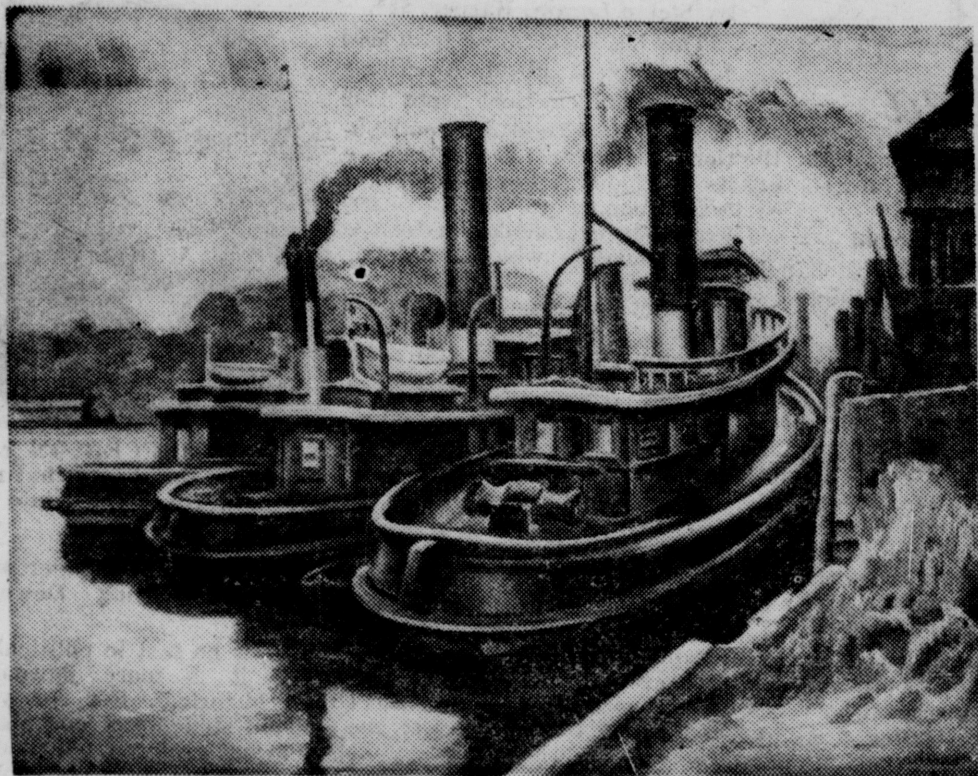

ROBERT RAYOW has DAVID ATKINSON on a ladder during the hectic action of "Man of La Mancha," the smash Broadway musical coming to the Community Theatre on Monday, April 14. That's Alan McCarter helping Rayow.

His Forte: The Landscape of Ulster

19—THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, MAR. 29, 1969

"THREE TUGS," making ready to move out of Rondout Creek and into the Hudson, were painted by Woodstock artist Charles Rosen in 1935. A Retrospective Exhibition of Rosen's paintings and drawings will be opening at The Castellane Gallery in New York City on April 1.

"RONDOUT" is the title of this Rosen painting of 1930. It shows in strong detail the brickyards near the bridge; captures the flavor of a Kingston landscape that is no more. Rosen, a native Pennsylvanian, called Woodstock his home for 30 years.

Everyone across the country who opened their newspaper to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's syndicated column, "My Day," that afternoon back in 1936 knew the First Lady had visited the Charles Rosens in Woodstock.

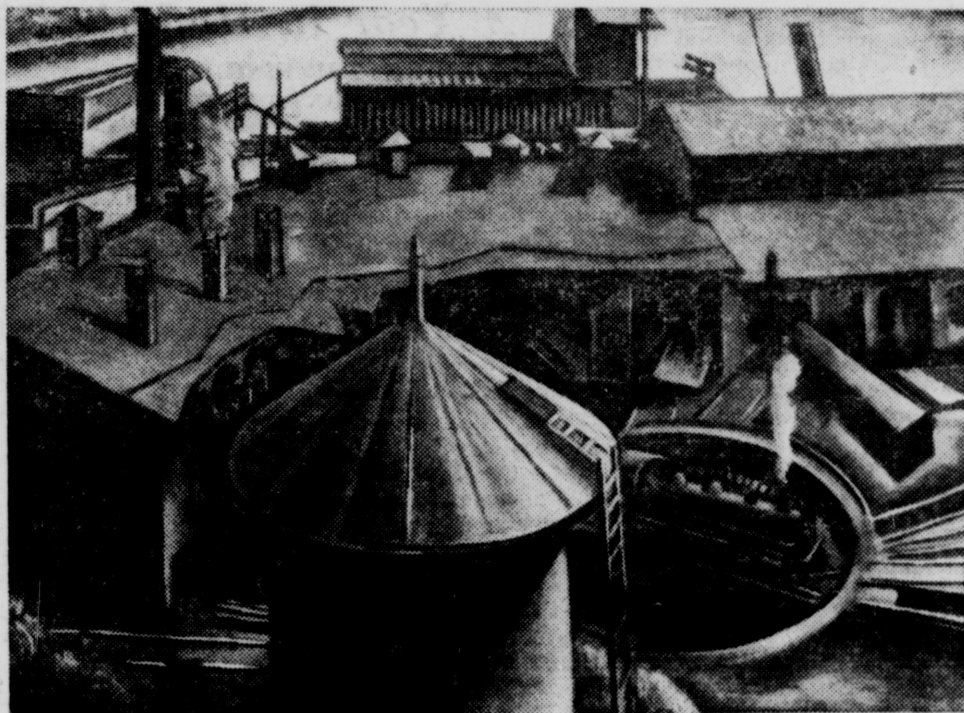

Said Mrs. FDR to the country at large: Mrs. Morgenthau (Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, wife of the then Secretary of the Treasury) and I left in my car to go to Woodstock, N. Y., an artist's colony back of Kingston. We wanted to see the sketches for the murals which Mr. Charles Rosen is doing for the post office at Beacon, N. Y."

Mrs. Roosevelt wrote further that the time spent in artist Rosen's studio had been "delightful," and the map he was painting (to go the length of the post office lobby) was "lovely in color and interesting in design." The other paintings which would help compose the mural, she said, "harmonize in color and give additional views which are historically interesting as well as scenically."

Excelled at Landscapes

Eleanor Roosevelt proved herself to be a skillful art critic that day, for the man she wrote about earned the extravagant praise of many writers and critics during a career that spanned almost 50 years as an artist. The First Lady was only one of many impressed by the talent and genius Rosen brought to his work. He excelled at landscape art as few others have ever done—and the Hudson Valley and the Catskills beyond were the landscapes he loved most to paint. He humanized the out-of-doors of Ulster and Dutchess in a very personal way, using the expert craftsmanship of his brush to capture forever the barns and mills of

"THE ROUNDHOUSE" was a famous Rosen work of 1927. Reproduced in full color, it was the painting chosen by The Castellane Gallery to adorn the cover of the impressive and beautiful catalogue which has been issued in conjunction with the gallery's April exhibit of Rosen's lifetime works.

"THE ROBERT A. SNYDER," abandoned to the ravages of wind, water and time, was the subject of this 1938 painting by Rosen. Many older residents may remember the sight of the Snyder, left to rot and deteriorate in the waters of Rondout Creek.

"EDDYVILLE" looked like this when Rosen took his easel and paintbox there in 1938. While the artist was also interested in figure and still-life drawings, his fame came primarily from paintings and murals based on the rare beauty of Ulster and Dutchess County landscapes. ## Big, Smashing Novel of Sea

SAILOR. By Richard Jessup. Little, Brown. $6.95.

It has been a long time since there was such a big, smashing novel of the sea as this.

It has all the elements of adventure, conflict, danger and heroism that you would expect to find in an action novel of the first order.

But it has more than that. It is a psychological study of what the sea does to men who devote their lives to it, how it seizes their minds and brings them under its spell.

The Spring of 1919

It is the story of Howard Cadiz, and it begins in Savannah, Ga., where his mother and his Aunt Meg have been trying to bring him up without a father—a shiftless character who has disappeared. But an influenza epidemic removes the two women, and the 14-year-old boy takes his first passage to sea in the spring of 1919.

Howard becomes a wanderer of the sealanes. He lives in a brutal world of brawling, drinking, wenching seamen—except for an interval during the Great Depression of the 1930s, when he returns home and becomes a hired gunman for a bootlegger.

He has two brushes with real love—a calculating young miss in England and two young play-girl-type in his home town—and is haunted for years by the remembrance of the latter. He rises to the rank of chief officer; he comes under the influence of a drunken old captain named Whitcomb, and dourly realizes that Whitcomb is the image of what he himself will become.

Fights Abound

There are some strikingly graphic scenes: a gunfight in the old bootlegging days; an intramural fight on the New York docks; a handful of tough seamen in a poker game (reminiscent of the author's short novel "The Cincinnati Kid"); a desperate, losing battle against a submarine in World War II.

But all through this rugged chronicle of life at sea there runs the theme of what the sea does to sailors, and the hero's final acceptance of that fate.

After you have read this novel, you will know you have been through an experience.

Strong Talk on a Touchy Subject

ANATOMY OF ANTI-COMMUNISM. A Report Prepared for the Peace Education Division of the American Friends Service Committee. Hill and Wang. $4.50.

The gist of this report is that "a blind, fanatical anti-communism is and has been disadvantageous to our country and its people. It has not 'stopped communism.' It has not advanced human liberty abroad or at home."

On the contrary, say the authors, it has blinded Americans to the nature of indigenous, non Communist revolutions of rising nations, sometimes causing our nation to support ultra-conservative regimes. And at home, they say, it has aroused fears that have led to the erosion of our traditional concepts of freedom and constitutional rights.

The book's major premise is that blind, irrational anti-communism does not work; that it does not understand the real nature of communism as a theory or practice. So there is a chapter devoted to analyzing what communism really is like—with its real faults and real weaknesses.

The Alternatives

The report concludes with a chapter on alternatives to what it terms the outmoded concepts of blind anti-communism.

"It is not that communism is good," say the authors. They challenge it and criticize it. "But we do not consider anti-communism to be the opposite of communism... it has become a political strategy that fights not only communism, but neutralism and democratic revolution as well," they say.

This is strong talk on a controversial and touchy subject, but it deserves to be heard, under the aegis of a Quaker organization long devoted to pacifism. The teachers and writers who prepared the report are James E. Bristol, Holland Hunter, James H. Laird, Sidney Lens, Milton Mayer, Robert E. Reuman, Athan Theoharris and Bryant Wedge.

A Year in Hoffer's Diary

WORKING AND THINKING ON THE WATERFRONT. By Eric Hoffer. Harper. $4.95.

The self-taught, longshoreman-philosopher Hoffer has quite a following among readers who appreciate his grasp of fundamentals and his gift for making bell-ringing generalizations that sum up a viewpoint.

This Hoffer book is not a major venture, but it is interesting because it shows how his mind works.

It consists of a diary that he kept from June 1958 to May 1959—a journal that became lost among his notebooks and then was rediscovered.

Down on Intellectuals

At that time, when he was 57, he was debating the idea of writing a book about intellectuals. By his definition, intellectuals are not altogether splendid persons.

He also ruminates on the human types that have dominated the last three centuries—"the 18th, aristocrats; the 19th, the middle class; and the 20th, the intellectuals."

As it turned out, Hoffer never did get around to doing the book on intellectuals, because it never seemed to grow beyond the size of a chapter. Instead, he gradually prepared his 1963 volume, "The Ordeal of Change."

The diary demonstrates that Hoffer—as an original thinker—has his ups and downs and his mental blocks. But it also shows that a man who feeds his fertile mind on a wide range of reading is bound to come up with a variety of creative ideas.

Putting Punch into Presidency

THE GLORIOUS BURDEN. By Stefan Lorant. Harper. $25.

This big book (more than 9000 large pages) about America's presidential elections from 1789 to 1964, is an unusual contribution to popular history because its chief punch is pictorial. The text, running to about 350,000 words, is overshadowed by the illustrations, which number about 1,500.

Lorant has spent many years combing archives, libraries, museums, newspaper and magazine files and other sources for the visual record of each election—the candidates, contests, the campaigns, the issues and the results.

For the early years the visual story had to be told in terms of paintings, drawings and engravings; then came the daguerreotypes and finally the photographs. For some presidents Lorant embellishes the record by presenting a series of pictures showing how each subject aged under the burdens of the office.

The Political Pen

While the candid camera is an important factor in the account, Lorant has relied heavily on another source to show the temper of the times—the political cartoon. The hundreds of cartoons contained in this book constitute in themselves a comprehensive review of the art of the political pen.

The photographs of the later years include many classics of the camera's record of sparkling moments in history; example—a grinning Truman waving aloft a newspaper with a headline declaring Dewey a winner.

This is no text in political science; it is more journalistic than historical. But for young and old students of our history, somewhat groggy from plodding through dry texts, this book offers a spur to an understanding of the whole democratic process because it gives a graphic portrayal of the red-blooded events of American politics.

CHURCH STREET IN SAUGERTIES looked rural and countrified in the days when Henry Backus roamed the town and surrounding area. (Photo from "Picturesque Ulster" as

Rambling Bard of the Catskills

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

(... Dusty Saugerties street corner in 1848. The sun glinting off the bright gilt scrawl on the feed-and-seed store nearby. There stands a man with a far-away look in his eye, a furl of dust wafting past his knees and curling around his waist... Stands near a small crowd of people, yet a little apart, with a black flat-brimmed hat held in one bronzed hand, the other hand making motions in the air as he begins to sing.

The eyes have a gentle look as they watch for the crowd's response, but the voice is strong and true. The words he sings have to do with the growing problems of slavery and their affect on the country's politics, but they are sung with the reportorial quality that a 19th Century David Brinkley or Harry Reasoner might have brought to a newscast, had such a phenomenon existed then.

... When the song is ended and the crowd begins to move on, the balladeer clamps the hat on his head, picks up a black leather bag at his feet, and starts slowly down the dusty street—heading where? Perhaps to Cairo, Catskill, Athens, New Baltimore, Albany. Some who turn to watch him as his figure dwindles in the distance whisper among themselves:

"He was born cursed—cursed to wander." ... "It's the family sin, most likely—just has to ramble and tramp and roam—never settlin' down." ... "Old Henry's troubled with itchy feet, sure enough."

Say Johnny Appleseed to the average man today and he'll probably respond with something along these lines: "Sure, I know all about him. He's the guy who wandered here, there and everywhere, planting apple orchards along the way."

Mention Washington Irving and the same fellow comes back with: "Famous author. Immortalized these Catskills with that story about Rip Van Winkle and a lot of others, too."

"How about DeWitt Clinton?"

you query. "Seems I read somewhere he went to school here at the old Kingston Academy," he might say. "Went on to become governor of the state."

But ask him or anybody else about Henry Backus and you draw a blank. Nobody, it seems, knows his name.

There was a time, however, when Henry Backus was a legend in the Catskill Mountains; when his fame spread far south and hundreds of miles north of here. When he was a virtual artist in his own right—an artist at an art so remote today that it has been unconsciously relegated by history to the time of Prince Valiant and those medieval vassals known as serfs.

But, once—long ago in those days before the Civil War changed the face of a nation, Henry Backus was called The Bard of Saugerties. And, year after year, he wandered these mountains and far afield by any means at hand, sometimes by

Television

Despite the fact that ABC cancelled Judd For The Defense, the network still holds an option on the series. In Sydney, Australia, a city with 2½-million people and four TV channels, Judd is the highest rated show in its time slot.

Enzo Cerasico, who impressed critics and viewers alike in My Friend Tony (which NBC has cancelled), has gone back to Rome to make a film. He'll be returning to the U.S., however, to do another TV series for producer Sheldon Leonard.

If you've been wondering whether Julia is coming back next year, yes, Julia will return, along with a new situation comedy starring a Negro male, the but great Bill Cosby. Both series will be aired over NBC-TV.

Which Cardinal

We have a letter from a reader who wants to know if the movie, "The Cardinal," is a true story. The lady says she thinks the film about "the man in the red hat" shown recently on TV bore a resemblance to the life story of Cardinal Cushing, although his name is never mentioned. For the record, the film was taken from the novel by the late Henry Morton Robinson, a long time resident of Woodstock's art colony. While it is fictitious, the main character, Stephen Fermoye, bears some resemblance to the late Cardinal Spellman, who was originally from Boston and served as archbishop of the Diocese of New York.

And guess what? The three major networks are going to continue to give us "Every Night at the Movies" next season. There'll be the usual combination of box-office hits (and misses) and movies especially made for TV. So, turn, on tune in, and don't forget to bring your popcorn.

Those rumors that Mission: Impossible will be canceled just aren't true. Mission: Impossible, self-destructive tapes, action-filled plots and all, will be back next season, same time, same place.

Have you noticed as we have that the first week of spring brought the first "summer" reruns? It all began Monday night with Here's Lucy, which started with a program, for some unexplained reason, that originally ran only two months ago on Jan. 27.

RANDOM THOUGHTS ON RECENT VIEWING:

Nature study fans got a real treat with the first of the new Unconquered Worlds series. Adventures at the Jade Sea was a marvelous look at the areas in the Republic of Kenya surrounding Lake Rudolf. The program was totally successful in showing the peculiarities of the region and of what remains of the past before civilization eventually devours it.

Jack Albertson, who's been nominated for an Oscar for his role in "The Subject Was Roses," was excellent in a role on The Virginian this week. The part was perfectly suited to the ex-vaudevillian, who played an old showman, traveling with his step-daughter and doing a mind-reading act.

Hallmark Hall of Fame again proved that really good drama on TV cannot be dated with its rerun of the beautifully produced Easter production, "Give Us Barabbas." The biblical story of the nervous decision of Pontius Pilate to offer either Jesus or Barabbas, a thief, to the mob to choose which man should be freed, it was a sensitive and revelatory production.

Cathy Come Home, when it was first presented on BBC some two years ago, was one of the most talked-about, controversial dramas that network had ever presented. It was easy to see why as it aired on NET PLAYHOUSE this week. It was a moving documentary-drama about poor people trying to make a decent life in overcrowded conditions; deserved the 1968 Grand Prix Italia it won for itself. Life in a Home for the Homeless is actually no life at all, as this tragic teleplay proved.

PICK OF THE PROGRAMS IN THE WEEK AHEAD:

Tonight, Sat., March 29

JACKIE GLEASON SHOW (CBS, 7:30 p.m.). In what is probably its best offering of the season, the program features Jack Benny, Robert Goulet, Jack Haley Sr., and Alan King. All very nostalgic.

Sunday, March 30

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONCERTS (CBS, 4 p.m.). With Leonard Bernstein conducting, "Bach Transmogrified" presents the "pure" Bach, then various arrangements of Bach pieces, including a Leopold Stokowski transcription, conducted by the 86-year-old maestro in a rare TV appearance. There's also an electrified version, an avant-garde version by Lukas Foss, and rock version by the New York Rock and Roll Ensemble.

ON STAGE (NBC, 10 p.m.). TV's first dramatic story about a heart transplant, "The Choice," is a compelling drama which moves quickly as things must when a heart transplant is involved. A young trooper, a potential donor, is brought to a hospital where five patients are awaiting hearts. The acting is excellent with Richard Castellano very moving as the father of the donor; Melvyn Douglas as an aging diplomat patient; and Frank Langella as a young concert pianist patient.

TRIBUTE TO MARTIN LUTHER KING (Channel 5, 10:30 p.m.). This week marks the first anniversary of Dr. King's death and this special program, "Black Dreams for a New World," blends remembrances, thoughts, poetry, and music to construct and emotional portrait of the late Negro leader.

Monday, March 31

LAUGH-IN (NBC, 8 p.m.). Gently needled about the propriety of appearing on the show tonight, the Rev. Billy Graham replies, "Jesus moved among the publicans and sinners, and I see no reason why I shouldn't be here."

Tuesday, April 1

FIRING LINE (Channel 17, 8 p.m.). Is the Fifth Amendment still relevant or is it a 16th century right? William F. Buckley and guests explore the reasons for its adoption and current moves for its repeal.

RICHARD KILEY, one of our best actors, an extremely fine singer and a name of some status in the industry, made a rare TV appearance on March 26 on the Kraft Music Hall.

FIRST TUESDAY (NBC, 9 p.m.). The April issue of this two-hour TV magazine will offer an interview with Clay Shaw, a study of a policeman as a human being, a look at a reducing farm in Mexico, a visit to an Anti-Communist Christian Crusade, an interview with Prince Philip of England, and a study of loud music and ear damage.

Wednesday, April 2

JACQUES COUSTEAU (ABC, 7:30 p.m.). A rerun but a good one of "The Unexpected Voyage of Pepito and Cristobal," about two young fur seals joining the Calypso on a voyage to the Caribbean.

MUSIC HALL (NBC, 9 p.m.). Female jockey Barbara Jo Rubin appears, along with singers Lena Horne and Jeannie C. Riley, comic Totie Fields, and host Mike Douglas.

ARSENIC AND OLD LACE (ABC, 9 p.m.). This drama special stars Helen Hayes and Lillian Gish as everyone's favorite murderers in the classic farce about a family in Brooklyn Hayes and Gish as the kindly maiden aunts who graciously "bring peace and tranquility" to lonely old gentlemen with arsenic seasoned elderberry wine, are aided and abetted by David Wayne as the dotty brother who's digging the Panama Canal in the cellar.

PETER GRAVES has become one of the most popular TV stars of this or any other season in his Mission: Impossible role. The series has been renewed for next year, meaning that Graves will still be around in the fall to help take care of the bad guys.

Fred Gwynne of "The Munsters" plays murderous brother Jonathan, and Jack Gilford is his fumbling sidekick. Bob Crane of "Hogan's Heroes" and Sue Lyon are featured as the only sane people in the plot.

Thursday, April 3

MOVIE (CBS, 9 p.m.). "Seven Days in May" is a taut political thriller about a military takeover of Washington. Top-notch cast includes Kirk Douglas, Burt Lancaster, Fredric March, Ava Gardner, Edmund O'Brien, Martin Balsam, George Macready, Hugh Marlowe and Andrew Duggan.

Friday, April 4

EEN CHRONICLE (Channels 13 & 17, 9 p.m.). Four distinguished writers — Ralph Ellison, James Baldwin, Robert Penn Warren, and Allen Gins-

CARL REINER is modishly attired for this scene from The Wonderful World of Pizazz, which he hosted on NBC recently. It was a musical-comedy about the latest in fashions and Reiner, who's usually very conservative in a nondescript suit, with a quiet tie, returned to his own wonderful world of comedy for the show; even made an entrance in his underwear to illustrate the influence of hair on fashion.

burg — present their own, personal tributes to the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. one day before the anniversary of King's death.

MEMORIAL PROGRAM (Channel 11, 11:30 p.m.). This Martin Luther King Tribute on the anniversary of his death has Manhattan Borough President Percy Sutton introducing the 50-voice Cathedral Choir of Mother AME Zion Church in Harlem. Featured are excerpts from Brahms' Requiem and Handel's Messiah, and from Dr. King's address ("I Have a Dream") at the Washington Monument during the 1963 March on Washington. (COMPILED BY T. ## Keeping Up With Broadway

Dustin's Popularity; Jones Will Play 'Nat Turner'

By JACK GAVER

UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The popularity of actor Dustin Hoffman has him on the run between stage and movie assignments these days.

The previously obscure player, who became an overnight sensation last year with the film, "The Graduate," has been starring on Broadway since last Dec. 5 in Murray Schisgal's comedy, "Jimmy Shine," which has been kept at a respectable box office level largely due to Hoffman's appeal.

In January, the play's producers began eliminating Wednesday matinees so Hoffman could work daytime without interruption in a movie being made here, "John and Mary," co-starring Mia Farrow.

That will scarcely be finished before Hoffman, through a commitment made prior to his engagement in the play, will have to start making another film, "Little Big Man," for Columbia Pictures.

Since that one will be made on the West Coast, "Jimmy Shine" will end its run in mid-April. However, the play's Wednesday matinees were re-stored March 26.

The film rights to "Jimmy Shine," incidentally, were purchased in December by Columbia, and undoubtedly it will provide another movie vehicle for Hoffman. The star has a still unreleased film, "Midnight Cowboy," which was made here early last summer.

Producer Harold Prince, currently represented on Broadway by "Zorba" "Cabaret" and "Fiddler on the Roof," was this year's recipient of the annual Sam S. Shubert Foundation Award for "outstanding service to the American Theater." Director Mike Nichols and playwright Neil Simon were past winners.

Comedian Alan King and singing actress Diahann Carroll will be co-hosts for the 90-minute television program on NBC April 20 at which the annual Tony Awards of the Broadway stage will be announced. Shows presented between March 20, 1968 and March 16, 1969 are eligible in the competition. The musical "1776," which opened in New York as scheduled March 16, just got under the wire.

Florence Henderson, prime leading lady of Broadway musicals for years, has been signed to make her first motion picture. She will star in "Song of Norway" for the ABC Pictures Corporation.

It seems strange that it has taken so long for someone to put this beautiful, talented, vivacious star in a movie, and stranger still that it has taken some 30 years for anyone to get around to putting this highly successful stage musical before the cameras. For those who came in late, "Song of Norway" is based on events in the life of composer Edvard Greig and the score is an adaptation of his compositions.

James Earl Jones, star of Broadway's current "The Great White Hope," will have the title role in the film, "The Confessions of Nat Turner," based on William Styron's Pulitzer Prize novel about the leader of an American slave revolt in 1831.

Cotter's Book on Hopkin Due Soon

Dr. James F. Cotter, chairman of the English department at Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh, recently had an article published in Papers on Language and Literature and has also reviewed several books for America magazine.

The article, entitled "Altar and Hour," treats the background of Gerard Manley Hopkins' poem "Wreck of the Deutschland" from a biographical point of view. Dr. Cotter was awarded a grant last summer from the National Endowment for the Humanities to write a book on Hopkin's sonnets, which will be published shortly.

The books Dr. Cotter reviewed for "America" include The Search for a Usable Future by Martin Marty, Robert Campbell's The Spectrum of Catholic Attitudes and Expensive People by Joyce Carol Oates.

Dance Concert

For the second time this season, Manhattan's Cubiculo Theatre is calling upon talent from this area to entertain its patrons. The Bennett College Dance Department will present the Bruce King Dance Concert at The Cubiculo on the evenings of March 31 and April 1 at 8:30. Emily Wadhams will be featured in the concerts on the stage of the theatre, 414 West 51st Street, New York City. Earlier this season, The Cubiculo presented an evening of poetry readings by two Woodstock poets.

THOUSANDS OF CANDLES dance dazzlingly in the background as Richard Harris and Vanessa Redgrave re-enact the wedding of King Arthur to Queen Guenevere in the Academy Award winning Technicolor presentation of "CAMELOT." The ornate musical is now playing at Kingston's Community Theatre through April 1.

MOVIES

Camelot

The title of this film tells us immediately that it is filled with knightly spectacle. It is also filled with a fantastically beautiful Lerner-Loewe musical score.

Now on screen at Kingston's Community Theatre, "Camelot" is an almost overwhelmingly romantic, yet somehow completely credible love story. Thanks to the screenplay and the deeply human quality of the performances of stars Richard Harris, Vanessa Redgrave, and newcomer Franco Nero, "Camelot" captures the very essence of the legendary love story of King Arthur, Queen Guenevere, and Sir Lancelot.

The stories of Arthurian chivalry, the Round Table, and those bravest and most questing of all knights were among our favorites during childhood. It follows that we liked the film, even though there's something subtly mod about what we would have preferred to see remain medieval. Still, director Joshua Logan has managed to give us for the first time, perhaps, a treatment of the poetic triangle that was Arthur, Guenevere and Lancelot, that shows them not so much as heroic characters of legend, but as earthbound, anguished human beings.

The Chief Asset

Even though the film boasts crashing battle scenes, spectacular sets and costumes, and some rousing good jostling, Vanessa Redgrave is the movie's chief asset. Her fantastic face and strong feminine appeal make of Guenevere a very real and passionate woman. Richard Harris sometimes comes across a little hammy as the idealistic Arthur — but he does his songs well, making them seem a part of the dramatic action. And dashing Franco Nero as Sir Lancelot is the ideal screen lover.

His singing of "If Ever I Would Leave You" evolves into an exquisite camera — celebration of the lovely Redgrave face, and "I Loved You Once in Silence" would have to take honors as the finest love scene in screen history, although we normally care little for poignant passion in films.

"Camelot" is lengthy but spellbinding, and it certainly brings romantic love back to the movies for the first time in a long time.

A Space Odyssey

The photography in "2001: A Space Odyssey" is the most stunningly beautiful ever seen on the screen. Breathtaking scenes of outer space, stars, planets, and the eyes of the viewer.

Written by one of the best science-fiction writers in the business, Arthur C. Clarke, the film is an epic adventure into the future. In Cinerama-Super Panavision and Metrocolor, it is currently showing at Walter Reade's Mayfair Theatre here.

Five years in the making, "A Space Odyssey" has to qualify as one of the greatest pictures ever made. Starting at the beginning of the world before man inhabited it, the film moves to astronauts landing on the moon. They discover a civilization there, making it possible for man to live there in the next century with all the luxuries of the earth. Author Clarke, incidentally, firmly believes that this can happen by 2001.

Fantastic Sets

Technical designers who worked on the movie have done a fantastic job anticipating and visualizing sets and props to capture the startling technological progress at the start of the 21st century. And the most advanced space vehicles yet developed on or off the screen figure prominently in the script.

You are asked to believe that it is the year 2001. And that less than a hour ago, you were rocked up from Kennedy spaceport to embark on a journey that will take you into the far reaches of the universe. Your first stop is the slowly turning wheel of Space Station One, in orbit high above the Equator.

The winged ship that has carried you from Earth nudges gently into the docking section and you embark into the 600-foot diameter space city to await the shuttle to the moon. While you wait in the spacious observation lounge you enjoy a breathtaking view of Earth. Twice every minute the dazzling spectacle swings past you, for the space station is revolving like a cosmic carousel. As it turns, centrifugal force gives you a feeling of normal weight; you can walk along the curving floor, pour a drink and know that it will stay in your glass, and you can distinguish between 'Up' and 'Down.'

That will give you a small hint of the vast proportions of this picture. The spectacle almost makes you forget the cast, but we hasten to add that Gary Lockwood and Keir Dullea star as scientists leading an expedition to the moon, and then on to Jupiter.

Hot Millions

You've seen swindlers on the screen before, but never one like the amiable swindler played by Peter Ustinov in the hilarious comedy, "Hot Millions." The film, now playing at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema, also stars Maggie Smith, Karl Balden and Bob Newhart.

For Ustinov, in his role as Marcus Pendleton — alias Caesar Smith — is an up-to-the-minute rogue. Scorning old-fashioned methods of feathering his nest illegally, he uses his corporation's computer to fleece the firm of millions.

First he has to dupe Malden and Newhart, top executives of T-A-C-A-N-C-O., an American corporation based in London, into believing he is the famous computer expert, Caesar Smith, whom they are employing. Fortunately, the real Smith (Robert Morley) is chasing butterflies in South America, giving Ustinov a chance to master the intricacies of M505, the infallible computer.

Once in control of this mechanized "brain," Marcus devises an ingenious scheme. Traveling abroad, he makes sure unknown companies begin appearing on T-A-C-A-N-Company's (Continued on Page 31)

Rambling Bard of Catskills

buggy, sometimes by boat, sometimes on foot.

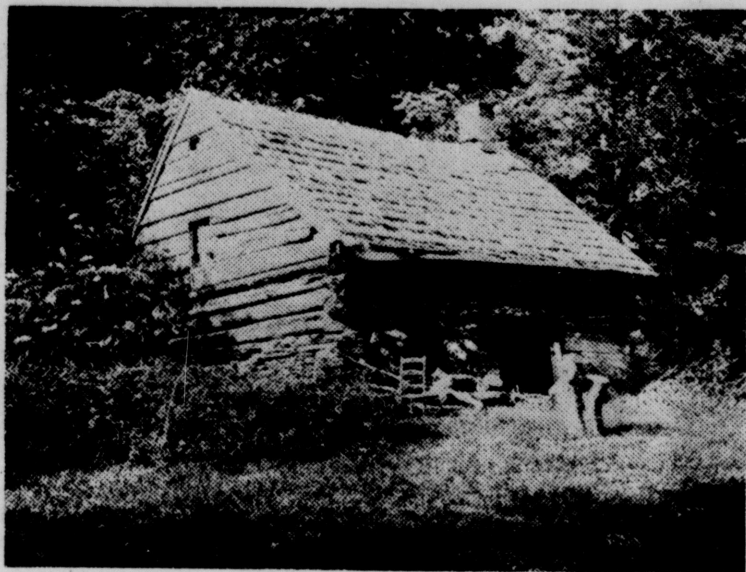

Known to thousands of people along the Hudson and high in the hills, he was hailed on his journeys by farmers getting in their hay and oats, by customers in tiny country stores, and by mountain people waiting for the mail outside some crossroads post office. At a blacksmith shop a smithy might pause from shoeing horses to listen to Backus . . . and at a grist mill a miller would silence the grinding of his stones when this wanderer passed by.

In an age when gypsy horse traders roamed the Catskills, when organ grinders with monkeys and entertainers with performing bears sometimes plodded alongside him, Henry Backus would stop a tourist or a child or a washerwoman and make the day a little more pleasant in the doing.

A Minstrel Man

Backus was a minstrel and the true art of minstrelsy in this day of that fast approaching walk on the moon seems as dusty as the legend of Robin Hood. The Medieval troubadours whose songs told of stories gathered in their travels are no more. If they have a modern counterpart at all, it would be the calypso singers of the islands. And yet, minstrelsy was very much alive right here in Ulster County as late as 1860.

The minstrel of the hour a hundred years ago was Henry Backus. Born in Greene County of very proper stock, his family tree boasted a father who had fought as a colonel in the War of 1812, and a brother who had been graduated from the Academy at West Point. Henry,

IN JUST SUCH A SHACK in the Catskills, the Bard of Saugerties was found, suffering from the illness from which he never recovered. (Photo from "Picturesque Catskills" (Greene County) as published from the 1894 original by Hope Farm Press, Cornwallville, in 1967).

however, was of a gentler nature and wars and rumors of wars were far from his thoughts. Forsaking the military for a love of music, he spent his early youth teaching the flute, drum and bugle. Eventually, Henry fell in love and married a delicate girl, who had been born in Saugerties. The couple went to live in her native town, but her delicacy proved to be something more than genteel sensitivity. She fell into an illness from which she never recovered. And, if we are to believe the legend, her death affected Henry so deeply that it plunged him into the wandering ways that were to mark his own remaining days. After his wife's death, he took to the road—travelling down to New York City and up as far as Canada to entertain the passersby.

As he wandered and rambled, he kept an interested ear tuned to local and world events. Without benefit of radio or television, he came by the news from conversations and through gossip and newspapers. And when something caught his fancy, he would dream up an impromptu rhyme and sing it to a popular tune of the day. His performances were often rewarded by a coin or two or the offer of a home cooked meal in the house of a farmer or in the kitchen of a roadside inn.

Later, he might write down his song, have it printed, and sell it for a penny a copy. Sometimes Backus gleaned his material while travelling in a gypsy caravan during the summer and spring months. Again, he found ideas for songs while bedding down in the rear of a store when winter weather made conditions in the then rural countryside too harsh for travel.

Changed by the War

As the years passed, time itself began to work against the colorful troubador. Once greeted with kindness and friendliness by all, a day came when he found that most of his old friends had been laid to rest in country graveyards. The final blow came when the young men went off to fight the Civil War, and the women left at home were too burdened with the chores of running manless houses to care about the old singer and his newsy tunes.

Still possessed by wanderlust, he set out again in the spring of 1861 to sing for his supper—but was found not too long thereafter, seriously ill in a shack in the Catskills. When he was brought back to Saugerties, no one seemed to remember him or to care enough about him to nurse him back to health. So low did his fortunes sink that he was jailed for vagrancy here in Kingston. Three days later, the man who had brought cheer and the musical news of an era to many, was found dead in his dismal cell. Henry Backus became a victim of his jailers, who allowed him to die of starvation and neglect.

( . . . Condemned, perhaps, from the very beginning because of his history as a migrant? Because of a restlessness that stubbornly kept him walking west and north and south? Because even when he knew his ramblin' days were done, he had to keep on the move with a kind of trancelike dedication? Plodding restlessly as though driven by a thirst or a dream?

Until they put him in a jail cell that nobody could call a home place . . . and he who had always had to go some place—some place else—could go no further. To be fenced in when there had never been a fence or a corner before; when there had always been the river and the woods and the mountains and one town after another on a road that never ended. But now the wanderlust had to end—because there was no more wandering possible beyond those four dreary walls and that small barred window.)

Backus was one of the last true minstrels to wander the countryside and to carry on an age-old tradition. Just last summer, however, the New York State Council of the Arts revived the style of the ancient tradition by sponsoring a young folk singer and balladeer named Don McLean a trek down the Hudson. Stopping to sing where anybody would listen along the way, this Hudson Valley Troubadour brought modern day news to his audiences in a manner far from new. It would be nice to think that, perhaps, the spirit of the man known as the Bard of Saugerties wandered with him on his travels.

His Forte: Landscape

Woodstock, the ferries, bridges and tugs of Rondout, the streets and night boats of Saugerties, and the hills and history of Beacon and Poughkeepsie.

Among his many admirers were President Roosevelt, who judged his mural designs for the Poughkeepsie post office (showing the annual Poughkeepsie regatta) the best in competition, and President Harry Truman, who accepted as a personal gift from West Point a copy of a portrait by Rosen of Joseph G. Swift, first graduate of West Point.

Nineteen years after his death, Rosen is being honored again with a Retrospective exhibition of his paintings and drawings at The Castellane Gallery, on New York City's East 81st Street. The show will run for the entire month of April and its highlight will be a number of paintings Rosen did of Rondout scenes a quarter of a century ago; the tugboats, riverboats and streets of Saugerties; and the bridges, mills and houses of Woodstock.

In Old Rondout

His Rondout paintings are collector's items today. As historical documents, the works are priceless and, as works of art, they illustrate Rosen's vital and sculptured treatment of buildings long since destroyed. Rosen went often to Rondout to paint its tugboats and ferry slip, its car yards and rail center. The impressive catalogue which has been printed in conjunction with the upcoming Retrospective Exhibition at the Castellane Gallery calls his Rondout based painting, "Roundhouse," a work that "lends to the roundhouse the same vitality that often marks the structuring of cathedrals."

The Castellane show honors an artist who was a rarity in his time; an artist of both critical and popular appeal. Born on a farm in Pennsylvania in 1878, he left the coal mining land of his youth to study painting in New York in 1900. Later he settled in New Hope; painted the local landscape along the Delaware River and the nearby Lehigh Canal for the next 17 years. A pioneer for his time, he turned his back on the "academic" paintings which were bringing him success and prizes; refused to exhibit for 10 years until he felt he had perfected a new style that was more abstract.

The last 30 years of his life were spent in Woodstock, and the town, its neighboring communities, and the whole Catskill countryside down to the banks of the Hudson River became the subject matter for his canvases. When Charles Rosen died in 1950, he was the acknowledged dean of Woodstock's artists—and rightly so—for he was one of the founders of the Woodstock School of Painting.

Rarely-Heard Concerto by Bach for New Paltz

A rarely-heard Bach Concerto for three harpsichords will be one of the featured numbers played by the New Paltz-College-Community Symphony Orchestra in its Spring concert Monday evening March 31 at 8:30 p.m. in the McKenna Theater at State University College, New Paltz.

This will be the final concert of the year for the 80-member orchestra.

Art Crossroads A DCC Exhibit

"Crossroads of Commercial Art" is the title of an exhibit now on view in the Dutchess Hall gallery at Dutchess Community College.

The art department of J. Walter Thompson Company, New York City, co-operated in arranging the display, which will be shown through April 9.

The public is invited to the show, free of charge. Groups planning to visit the gallery are asked to have a representative notify the college in advance.

The exhibit may be seen Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

"The show is intended to reveal the thin lines dividing the professional requirements of fine and commercial art," says A. Leslie Ross, associate professor of art at DCC. "Despite the fundamental differences of intention, one cannot fail to identify similar standards of workmanship required for both," Ross noted.

Emmy Awards Set

NEW YORK (UPI)—The live broadcast of ceremonies involving the annual Emmy awards of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences will come from Carnegie Hall in New York and the Civic Auditorium in Santa Monica, Calif. CBS carries the show June 8.

Graves in Film

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Peter Graves of television's "Mission: Impossible" will star in "The Five-Man Army" for MGM in Europe.

Dr. Harry Hammer, symphony director and acting associate dean at New Paltz, said the Bach work is exceptionally beautiful but because it was difficult to find three harpsichordists outside of major metropolitan areas, the piece is not well-known. Dr. Mary Corry and Joyce Auchincloss of the college music faculty will join Marth Flots of Poughkeepsie in the Bach Concerto for Three Harpsichordists.

Other members of the college music faculty who will appear are Linda Cumiskey, concertmaster; Martin Sperber, woodwinds; Dr. Gundaris Pone, violin; Harry Jensen, head of the cello section, Lance Premizzi, head of the viola section; and Peter Alexander, clarinetist who will play the solo part in Weber's Concertino for Clarinet and Orchestra.

A Large Group

In addition to these and other New Paltz faculty members, the orchestra is composed of musicians in the Mid-Hudson region, and approximately 25 college students and outstanding high school students.

The program for the evening also includes Copland's Fanfare for the Common Man, Sibelius' Symphony No. 2 (Finale), the St. Paul's Suite, by Holst, and Polovetsian Dances by Borodin.

Dr. Hammer said the concert is open to the public without charge. The orchestra not only provides additional symphonic music for the neighboring areas, but also provides an opportunity for performers in the region to play in a symphonic organization.

Going Gourmet

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Off in Malden, one of the more picturesque communities in the Saugerties area, is a restaurant that defies typing. It is the Katsbaan Inn and its menu is a collage of far north, deep south, Irish, French, Finnish, Italian and other offerings.

Malden is hard by the Hudson River and it is singularly appropriate that the Katsbaan Inn specializes in seafood prepared in a variety of ways. There's Canadian red salmon, which comes either saute or poached and is served with a thick, lemony Hollandaise sauce. Shrimp Creole with rice pilaf is much in demand among regular customers. The broiled haddock comes to your table with lemon butter, and the fillet of flounder a la Orly is a pretty and highly edible dish.

A remarkable and inexpensive value considering its merit is the whole flounder, maitre de hotel. Also offered are deep fried oysters with tartar sauce in season, and broiled boneless smelts.

Fish Dishes

Other taste delights in the "Fish Dish" category: broiled lobster tails with drawn butter, and lobster thermidor (one of our favorites along with the Canadian red salmon). Rounding out the seafood dishes are fried scallops (good sized specimens), Alaska crab claws (burgeoning with firm, textured meat), and Alaska crab meat au gratin, "Monte Carlo."

The French flair which has crept into the descriptions above on occasion is particularly noticeable in the Coq au vin rouge (chicken in red wine) served at the Katsbaan. Equally good is the roast Long Island duckling, Montmarencey.

There is a small but excellent battery of other ethnic dishes. Corned beef and cabbage, for instance, or Finnish Beef Stroganoff with rice pilaf, or Italian style veal cutlet parmesian.

The atmosphere of the Katsbaan is contemporary and unobtrusive, with the accent on good food and service. The decor is simple but attractive; gives a seasonal feeling no matter what the time of year with its woodish paneling, orange drapes, interesting wall paintings, and foliage-colored carpeting. Many of the dishes are far from standard and all are well prepared.

Interesting Appetizers

Appetizers include such familiar attractions as fresh fruit cup, chicken liver pate, herring in sour cream, and jumbo shrimp cocktail. More unusual: anchovies with pimentos, Escargots de Bourgogne, Little Neck clam cocktail.

Other entrees: such truly superior roast prime rib of beef, au jus that it is served week-ends only; broiled double lamb chops, sliced old fashioned steak plate, southern fried chicken, roast turkey with giblet gravy and dressing (again served week-ends only), broiled sirloin steak with onion rings, and fillet of beef, saute, with mushroom sauce.

Katsbaan also takes well deserved pride in its desserts (the Swedish apple cake is particularly good), and in its cocktails, cognacs, brandies, cordials and liqueurs.

Off to Madrid For Art & Lit

Vassar College and Wesleyan University have announced the establishment of a joint study center in Madrid, Spain, starting next September. About 15 students from each institution will take part in a one-semester program in Spanish art, literature and history taught by Spanish professors. The resident director will be alternately a member of the Vassar or Wesleyan faculty; the director for next year is Wesleyan's Assistant Professor of Romance Languages Henry Fernandez, who is now at Indiana University.

Classes will be held at the International Institute in Madrid, but students will live with Spanish families and will have opportunities to meet Spanish university students. The program is open to sophomores and juniors who have studied Spanish; it is not limited to those majoring in Spanish.

Wesleyan has had such a program for several years, but this is the university's first joint venture in the field.

Back to D-Day

Film producer Darryl F. Zanuck must be planning a re-issue of his celebrated 1962 motion picture, "The Longest Day," about the Allied invasion of Europe in 1944. For he will be meshed with clips from the film, recreating battle scenes.

'Madrigal Mosaics'

Mid-Hudson Madrigal Singers will present two performances of "Madrigal Mosaics," a concert designed to re-create the exuberant atmosphere of the Renaissance through the works of authors and composers of that era. Readings from the literature of the Elizabethan age will be presented by guest artist Bill Skilling, a talented performer who is director of Coach House Players and program director of WHGQ.

Skilling was active in radio, television, and theater in New York City, and studied Shakespeare with Norman Barrs.

The Madrigal Singers, conducted by Beatrice Bright, will offer a selection of numbers which represent some of the most delicately balanced and expressive choral music in the repertoire. The program will include 16th century works by such composers as Wilbye, di lasso, Morley, Gibbons, and Janequin. Two modern compositions by Hindemith will be heard, in addition to selections from Schubert's "Mass in G," performed to a capacity audience at Marist College last December by the Madrigal Singers with the Hudson Valley Chamber Players.

Performances will be held tonight at the Woodstock Artists' Association, and on Saturday, April 26, at Church of the Holy Cross, Pine Grove Avenue, Kingston. Concert time is 8:30 p. m. Admission for adults is $2.50, and $1.25 for students.

books. A M505 begins paying checks to these companies, Marcus prospers.

Musical Love

He also falls in love. The girl is Patty Terwilliger (Maggie Smith), as scatterbrained a winsome wench as has ever graced a movie comedy. When Patty proposes marriage to Marcus, he accepts. He likes to play the piano while Patty accompanies him on her flute.

But the unexpected can sometimes take a hand in an embezzler's life. Marcus learns he is going to become a father at about the same time Malden and Newhart decide to take over the prosperous new businesses. Marcus decamps, but quick, to Rio de Janeiro, taking a bewildered Patty and a dispatch case containing the "hot millions" along. All set to live happily ever after, he's back in the soup again when scatterbrained Patty invites Malden and Newhart to visit them.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

J. Haviland Barley was reminiscing recently about good old days when Montgomery Ward employees at North Front Street store (now torn down) gathered at Jim Morgan's bar (now torn down) which was located where Shanty Store used to be before it was, you guessed it, torn down. Wonder if some of those employees cashed checks at Roundout Savings Bank—when the bank was at its Urban Renewal, 26 Broadway site—on their way to Orpheum Theatre, that is, before it went "off Broadway."

"2001-A Space Odyssey" was fantastic. What with hurtling through immense star clusters, wearing grip shoes to walk on ceilings, and taking dazzling planet trips to Jupiter, it was enough to steer you to a bomb shelter. But wouldn't have missed it for "the world."

Kingston's great, great grandfather Felix L. Nettleton, an octogenarian minus two, had a happy last week at Liguori's Restaurant. And, speaking of the restaurant, tenor Joe Liguori and accompanist Howard Houghtaling just returned from an engagement at Americana Hotel in Miami. Howard's mother is getting in on the act, too. One of her paintings now on display at Liguori's. Just a platoon of talents, eh what!

According to Guinness Book of World Records, there are approximately 1,290,000 Smiths in the U.S. One of the Kingston Smiths who "made good" is Marion Smith. She completed 21 years with N.Y. Telephone Co. and was initiated into The Pioneers. In our estimation, it couldn't have happened to a nicer Smith.

Some entertainers are really wild but to say they are "out of their tree" can be taken literally at Jamaica Inn, Latham - Schenectady Road, where they're perched in a housetree right above entrance. Overheard a gentleman there speak about a blue light in the upstairs bar that make all women look 10 years younger. Needless to say, the cocktail lounge is very popular. As for food, when we oh'd and ah'd to the waiter about the marvelous buffet, he pshawed us off with "You should see our Sunday smorgasbord." Art London has, but we don't know if he went there for the food or to see if that blue light works for men, too.

Johnny McNally — remember those old Rolling Acres days—was accompanying some of Kingston's most mellifluous voices Saturday night at Dutch Rathskeller including those of Viv and Sonny Barnes, Hank and Shirley Cragan, Andy Hook and wife, the Jim Gilpatrics, Frank Reis, Bob and Helen Ross.

Auld Lang Syne at Big Indian's popular Maison Lafayette Restaurant Saturday as skiers started to say adieu. Restaurant is area "sleeper" for those who prefer continental French cuisine. Bertha and Vince Connelly have discovered it and became such steady diners that owner chef Honore Martin named an appetizer in her honor: Coquille Bertha. The Ray Myer and Dr. Olivet are steadies, too, but 'tho there were "olives," couldn't find any special "Meyers" entree. The place is so-o-o-French, owner's poodle barks with an accent.

Painters and Potters

Focus on Three Centuries

Two Orange County Heritage programs planned by Orange County Community College during April will focus attention on the talents and creations of early artists and craftsmen of the area.

Painters, potters, cabinet-makers and silversmiths of 18th, 19th and 20th Century historical importance will be covered in two evenings of illustrated lectures to be held on Friday April 11, and Friday, April 25, in Orange Hall at OCCC Middletown. Both programs begin at 8 p. m.

The spring study of local history is a continuation of the OCCC Lyceum Series project started last fall with a series of four lectures and two tours entitled "Kaleidoscope: Orange County." More than 150 persons were enrolled in the series.

Four specialists in art and crafts will appear at OCCC, and illustrate their lectures with colors slides, actual art objects, and antiques.

On April 11, Robert White of Bloomingburg, a collector and dealer in American art for more than 20 years, will speak on "Orange County Craftsmen" and Robert Wiggins of Middletown, a consultant to the New York State Historic Trust, will describe "Paintings of Orange County."

On April 25, Brewster Board

150 Vocies Combine at New Paltz

The 20th Annual Choral Clinic featuring 150 chosen student singers from eastern New York and Long Island high schools will present a public concert tonight at 8 o'clock in the McKenna Theater at State University College, New Paltz.

Students arrived Friday morning to begin a two-day rehearsal schedule combining all the schools into one larger chorus.

Guest conductor for this year's Clinic will be Robert Page, professor of music and director of choral activities at Temple University. Page has appeared as guest conductor with the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Albuquerque Symphonies. The New Paltz concert sponsored by Mu Sigma Epsilon, the New Paltz college music fraternity, is open to the public without charge.

Among the works to be performed are, "Rock-a My Soul in the Bosom of Abraham," and "There's A City Called Heaven," both arranged by Page; Benjamin Britten's "Choral Dances from G L O R I A N A," Cherubini's

Summer Focus on TV

"Summer Focus, 1969" is the title covering 13 one-hour ABC documentaries to be aired during the summer. Vital issues of the present will be covered. The series begins June 2 and will be spread through various time periods.

"Requiem Mass in C minor," and "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come," by Williamson. The chorus will be accompanied by the New Paltz Faculty Chamber Orchestra.

Garry Moore Returns

Garry Moore returns to television as a regular in September, although he will be on a syndicated rather than a network show. He will be host of a revived version of the "To Tell the Truth" game program, which ran for 12 seasons as a network attraction.
